Governor Says Public Angered Over 'Revolving Door' Justice

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — People are angry over "revolving door justice" which they feel returns criminals to the streets after a brief stay in jail, Gov. William Milliken said Wednesday.

Citing statistics which showed that few of those arrested are convicted and fewer yet go to jail, Milliken said the public's anger is reflected in declining confidence in Michigan's law enforcement and criminal justice institutions.

froze out completely when three nights of frost hit southwestern Michigan April 26-28. Herbert Teichman, owner of Tree Mendus Fruit farms, Eau Claire, advised the governor Wednesday all the young fruit on the rent-a-tree tree that Teichman has reserved for the state chief executive was killed. But he informed the governor a tree that escaped damage has been chosen as a replacement. He expects to have 175 trees rented this year, and he said he guarantees a crop for his renters. To the governor, Teichman added: "We hope you will have an opportunity to enjoy God's blue sky, green grass and fresh air with us this summer."

Coalition's Charges Ruled Unfounded

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON

Staff Writer
Berrien County Coordinator Roger Petrie said yesterday he has been informed that a U.S. Department of Labor investigation has cleared Berrien county and the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce of charges of discrimination filed by the Benton Harbor area "community coalition".

The coalition, formerly known as the "black coalition," last September, had asked for withholding of Department of Labor funds to Berrien county. It is not substantiated.

The coalition, which also marched on Washington in November to air grievances, had accused the county and its Comprehensive Employment Training act were not withheld, but an investigation was made.

Petrie said he learned results of the investigation in a copy of a letter from Richard G. Gilliland, regional administrator for the Labor Department. In the letter addressed to coalition leaders, Gilliland noted: "It is our opinion that your request for the withholding of Department of Labor funds to Berrien county is not substantiated."

had accused the county and its Comprehensive Employment Training Act programs with discriminatory practices and accused the chamber of hostility to the needs of blacks and "systematic containment of blacks and other citizens" of Benton Harbor."

The telegram sent to Labor Department officials by the coalition also charged discrimination in hiring and promoting people paid by federal funds and claimed there was an "unequal allocation of funds by using discriminatory practices in the selection and allocation process."

On the latter charge, Gilliland's letter stated: "The distribution of funds for the City of Benton Harbor and Benton township were found to be equitable and according to the established formula" and went on to note: "Based on our investigation, we could find no evidence to substantiate your allegation of unequal allocation of funds."

Copies of the investigation results were mailed to coalition leaders Mayor Charles Joseph, County Commissioners Bill Joseph and Victor Greer, Herschel McKenzie, president of the Twin Cities NAACP, and Nora Jefferson and Helen Ford, chairperson and director, respectively, of Berrien County Action, Inc. Petrie also received a copy.

Many of the Labor Department's responses to the coalition allegations were the same, stating there was no evidence to back up the charge.

On the "systematic containment" charge against the chamber, the findings state: "Our analysis of the manpower programs operated in the Twin Cities provided no evidence that conference, quoted a study which he said showed that "people are angry because they feel they are being victimized by the same criminals, time and again, who simply go through the revolving door of our criminal justice system."

But, Milliken said, there is no simple answer to the crime problem and said the fight against crime will not be won unless the public at large participates.

On a similar note, Eastern Michigan University President James Brickley told the conference that crime will not be solved until people protect themselves and their property, report crimes, be witnesses in court, and help protect their neighbors.

Brickley, a former FBI agent, U.S. attorney and state lieutenant governor, added that people must stop kidding themselves about how to handle offenders.

Punishment should come first, and rehabilitation second, in the corrections system, Brickley said, "so that we do not mislead or disappoint either the criminal or the public."

Zoe Burkholz, probate and acting circuit judge from Berrien county, addressed the conference on the subject of "Making the Contact Pay Off."

Judge Burkholz said that "parental neglect breeds delinquency; breeds felonies. To prevent crime, we must get everyone involved: parents, other citizens, schools, law enforcement agencies.

"To prevent crime, we must get to abused and neglected children the earliest possible time."

"We are fortunate in Berrien county that the people have furnished us with the funds, as well as volunteer service, to do the job. We are proud that Berrien county, along with Genesee (Flint) county, have programs recognized as being effective."

The conference came on the heels of an annual report from the state Office of Criminal Justice Programs which showed more families than ever in Michigan were victims of crime, and more people than ever feared for their safety.

Brickley said officials must "recognize that society will not tolerate forever the high rates of crime we are experiencing today. Citizens will continue to demand a decrease to tolerable levels."

Van Buren Fruit Loss May Hit $20 Million

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Crop damage in Van Buren county caused by below freezing temperatures during the last week of April could run us high as $20 to $25 million, the county's top agriculture official has predicted.

A. Robert (Bob) Earl, Van Buren cooperative extension service director, said Wednesday that he expects that over 80 per cent of the county's grape crop was wiped out, and that yields of apples, peaches, plums, cherries, and pears may be only one-quarter to one-third of normal.

Earl said he planned to meet with the county's agricultural disaster committee Friday to begin gathering and documenting information that will be eventually used in an attempt to secure low interest government loans for affected growers who cannot borrow from standard credit sources.

"I don't know if I've ever seen the grape hurt as bad as they are now," he remarked. "Just about all the primary buds have been destroyed and many of the secondary buds damaged."

Earl said he was also worried about tertiary buds which effect the growth of the vines for next year's crop.

"What the total damage will be we won't know for the next 10 days until more buds start to blossom," he said, adding that statistically there's still a 10 per cent chance of frost between now and May 15.

The present situation was brought about after a period of unseasonably warm weather just after Easter was followed by five days of sub-freezing temperatures between April 25-29, Earl said. As a result, buds which normally don't blossom until May 10, were 15 days ahead of schedule and were caught in a killer frost.

Last year, the value of raw agricultural products in the county was about $50 million. But that figure is only part of the picture, because the value of those products are greatly increased as they go through the county's wine and fruit-processing industries, Earl noted.

In 1975, Michigan's 18,000 acres of grape land produced some 60,000 tons of fruit. Earl said he believes this year's yield could be under 20,000 tons, the lowest since 1973's 23,500, and well under a recent peak of 69,000 tons produced in 1971. Virtually all Michigan grapes are grown in southwestern Michigan.

Yields, normally in the four to five ton per acre range, could fall to one ton per acre, he estimated, making harvesting a very expensive proposition.

Generally, about 85 per cent of the grape crop goes for juice, 10 per cent for wine, and five per cent for the fresh market, Earl said. While other fruits can be trucked in from outstate to Van Buren processors to offset shortages, grape losses will not be as easy to replace, because Van Buren county is the heart of the state's grape industry, he said.

Apples, cherries, peaches, pears, and plums were pretty much in their most vulnerable stages when the frost struck, Earl said. He said that even where the buds survived there may be damage effecting quality — fruit may be misshapen or apples may have frost rings.

"Apples usually show the best chance of surviving," he noted. "They seem to be more tolerant to cold."

But even within the apple crop there could be large differences, he warned. Jonathans and Gol-

Berrien County Sheriff Nick Jewell, 46, announced today he will be a candidate for election to a third term. Jewell has been top Republican vote-getter in Berrien since winning his first election in the 1968 primary when he polled more votes than three opponents combined.

He is the first to announce candidacy for sheriff for this year's elections. Jewell said he is not aware of any Republican or Democratic opposition.

Jewell said: "I seek re-election to the office of sheriff to continue work towards providing all citizens of our county a safer community in which to live and work."

He also noted: "The last 7/8 years as sheriff have been a very challenging and rewarding experience. There have been many changes in law enforcement as well as laws governing it. The changes for the most part have been beneficial to both the citizen and law enforcement alike."

Jewell stressed cooperative ventures which his department has entered during his administration as sheriff. These include Berrien County Police Services council which conducts a unified drive toward suppression of crime; Berrien Metro narcotics unit and Berrien Metro crime unit.

He said serious crimes in Berrien county increased only six-tenths per cent in Berrien county in 1975 compared to an increase of 12.9 per cent in 1974, indicating that cooperation is paying off in the battle against crime.

Jewell said other recent advancements in his department include the standard police automated resource management information system (SPARMS), the first to be installed in a sheriff's department in the state; and microfilming of records in conjunction with SPARMS to provide a centralized records system for the county.

Jewell's career in law enforcement started in 1955 when he joined the sheriff's department as a deputy.

He is a graduate of the FBI's National academy, has an associate degree in criminal justice from Lake Michigan college, is present chairman of the Berrien Police Services council, chairman of Twin City Traffic and Safety committee, a member of the Governor's Advisory Council on Emergency Preparedness, and vice chairman of Region IV Crime commission.

Illegal Aliens: Predators Or Prey?

Much has been made of the adverse impact of illegal aliens on the American economy. According to ICF Inc., a public-policy consulting firm in Washington, D.C., foreigners living illegally in the United States cost the federal government $13-billion a year. The money is lost through the direct payment of such benefits as food stamps and Medicaid and indirectly through the aliens' evasion of income taxes, their remittances to relatives at home, and the loss of income by American citizens.

The $13-billion figure is only an informed guess, however, and it may well be overly conservative. No one knows for sure how many illegal immigrants are living in the United States. Estimates usually range from four to seven million, but the commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), Leonard F. Chapman Jr., has said it could be as high as 12 million, including perhaps as many as one million in New York City.

Only a fraction of the persons who enter the United States illegally are ever caught, and the number has been rising from year to year. In fiscal year 1965, agents of the INS's investigations and border patrol divisions apprehended 110,371 deportable aliens. In fiscal year 1975, 756,819 were apprehended inside the United States and 800,000 more were turned back at the border.

If illegal aliens prey upon the American economy, it is equally true that they are preyed upon by Americans. Many aliens work at jobs that pay less than the federal minimum wage. They dare not complain lest they be detected and deported. A Labor Department study of 793 apprehended illegal aliens found that 20 to 25 per cent "appear to have been paid below the minimum wage."

Illegal aliens also are victimized by brokers who, for fees ranging from $500 to $3,000, arrange for them to marry American citizens. Unless they are detected by INS officials, such fraudulent marriages of convenience can enable aliens to obtain permanent-resident status.

Robbers have discovered that illegal aliens are ideal victims, for they dare not report their loss to the police. The problem appears to be especially acute along the U.S.-Mexican border. On March 29, for instance, six illegal aliens were attacked by a gang of American youths as they crossed the border into San Diego. The youths took about $2,000 in cash and $60 in jewelry from the group. A second gang attacked the aliens later that day, but there was nothing left to take.

At present, the INS is empowered only to deport illegal aliens. It has no authority to take action against employers who knowingly hire them. Legislation sponsored by Rep. Peter J. Rodino (D-N.J.) would provide such authority and prescribe fines and imprisonment for violators. The measure has been passed twice by the House, but it has gotten nowhere in the Senate.

Opponents of the Rodino bill argue that it might have unintended consequences. Employers, it is said, would play it safe by refusing to hire even naturalized citizens who could be mistaken for illegal aliens. Complaints of job discrimination against minority groups inevitably would follow. In short, the illegal-alien problem is an "ethnic issue." And no prudent politician wants to fool around with one of those in an election year.

50th Anniversary Of

Byrd's Flight Over Pole

Richard Evelyn Byrd, who died in 1957, was one of America's most celebrated heroes. The brother of U.S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd Sr. (D-Va.), Richard Byrd made his mark in the fields of aviation, navigation and polar exploration. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1912, but served only three years on active duty when a leg injury forced him to retire. The fledgling field of naval aviation, however, was in need of volunteers, and Byrd was readmitted into the Navy to be trained as a pilot. After World War I, Byrd moved into aviation research and worked on the development of navigational aids and dirigibles. In 1924, while commanding a small naval aviation detachment in western Greenland, he began what was to become a polar career. Byrd was the first person to command and navigate a flight over the North Pole, 50 years ago, on May 9, 1926. He and his pilot, Floyd Bennett, flew from Spitsbergen (a group of islands in the Arctic Ocean, north of Norway) to the North Pole and back again. This exploit and those to come excited the American public to a degree difficult to imagine today. Like Charles Lindbergh in 1927 and Neil Armstrong in 1969, Byrd had accomplished the seemingly impossible — and had been the first to do so.

Byrd's status as an international aviation hero enhanced his ability to gain financial backing for a 42-man expedition to Antarctica in December 1928. It was there that Byrd set up "Little America," his base camp at the Bay of Whales. On Nov. 29, 1929, he and three other men became the first to fly over the South Pole. The New York Times considered that flight the biggest news story of the year 1929 — bigger even than the stock market crash.

In 1930, Byrd was promoted to rear admiral. He led three more expeditions to Antarctica — in 1933, 1938 and 1946 — and was given command of all U.S. activities there in 1955. In addition to his exploring, Byrd wrote three books and served on the staff of the Chief of Naval Operations during World War II. He was accorded full honors at his funeral in Arlington National Cemetery in 1957, befitting his status as one of the nation's true heroes of the 20th century.

The petition drive to place a constitutional amendment limiting state taxing and spending on the November ballot is going to be a close thing.

State Representative Ed Fredricks, who is one of the amendment's sponsors, says the next 30 days of the petition drive will be crucial.

Getting the necessary 265,000 signatures will require a great effort. However, we had better make that effort as this may be our last chance to put a lid on spending in Lansing.

Runaway spending and taxing will result in an exodus of people, businesses and jobs from our state. We have already seen striking evidence of this in New York City and in the loss of industries in some of our own cities like Dearborn and Adrian.

At the national level unchecked spending and taxing will eliminate what is left of our free society. As British historian Alexander Tytler warned nearly 200 years ago:

It is my understanding that negotiations with Benton Harbor area school administrators relative to wages and their increments has been pending since April, 1975.

As a taxpayer and resident of Fairplain and an ardent supporter of our Benton Harbor area schools, I would like to commend our Benton Harbor area school administrators on the very professional manner in which they have conducted themselves in the operation of the schools, putting education and best interests of the children ahead of their pay checks.

To my knowledge they have carried on their duties in a very normal way even though contract conditions have not been settled.

A petition signed by nearly 60 per cent of the property owners on Forres Avenue between Howard and Winchester avenues, who object to the proposed pavement of that portion of the street, was read to the St. Joseph city council last night. The additional traffic which would be attracted to the street would be dangerous to the 41 minor children residing there, it was stated.

Henry Kissinger A Complex Man

States would be better off following different policies could, in his eagerness to show himself right and his critics wrong, carry this nation into stands and agreements reached for their dramatic effect rather than for the long-time good of this nation.

They station themselves to his left and right, and through the session ply their eyes from front to back across the sea of reporters, who have already passed through two security checks before being allowed into the room. No photographer — or reporter — is allowed to the rear of an imaginary line running directly through Kissinger's speaking stand.

The security is tighter than at any Presidential press conference I've attended.

Kissinger is obviously nervous, though surely not in fear of the reporters. His jokes, for the most part, do not come off well, certainly not with the ease of earlier days in the White House. He repeats himself. Even when responding to questions from reporters he knows well, he stares blankly, unlike his casualness of months back.

But he clearly relishes being Secretary of State. It is difficult to believe he will give up the post willingly, even under today's pressures and political attacks.

Criticism has always bothered Kissinger deeply and he has been known to go to pieces when under sharp attack. He has had a tendency, for years, which shows up now in his private conversations, to be deeply suspicious of the motives of those who differ with him.

Disagreement is taken as personal affront.

The danger here is that this man who continually looks inward at his own emotions and logic and refuses to understand the emotions and the reasoning of those who believe the United States become angry beyond words when they learn that he has used their names and approval for programs or deals they are dead set against.

Since Kissinger uses the same techniques in international deals, leaving each side to believe its own interpretation of the arrangements made, and since, as time goes on, the parties then learn the Kissinger arrangement is not what they thought, each side then tends to accuse the other of treachery.

The only reason Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has not been dumped is that we are too close to the election. His departure now would be too blatant a sign of disarray at the top.

Nevertheless, his policy of detente is in intellectual receivership, and his policies across the board are shot through with fatal contradictions.

One glaring contradiction in detente, for example, resides in Kissinger's belief that we can a) have all kinds of special trade relations beneficial to the USSR, while b) at the same time sternly warning such nations as France and Italy that Communist participation in their governments is "unacceptable."

Or consider the meaning of the Helsinki agreement in the context of detente. Helsinki shifted the political struggle Westward — away from the Soviet empire in East Europe. This was underlined by the recent bankrupcy remarks of Kissinger aide Helmut Sonnenfeldt; but Sonnenfeldt was doing no more than spelling out the implications of Helsinki. With its East European empire secure from "interference" — and those nations, interestingly, used to be called "central" Europe — the Soviet focus moves Westward, to Italy, Spain, Portugal, France.

Notice, now, how brazenly Pravda rebuked Kissinger for warning the NATO countries against Communist participation in their governments. Such warnings, said Pravda, constituted U.S. "interference" in the affairs of those countries. Translation: the Soviets' political goal is the extirpation of U.S. influence in, now, Western Europe. Of course, the French and Italian Communist parties do not constitute outside interference. They are normal French and Italian political parties.

Kissinger's so-called new policy in Africa also splits on a hopeless contradiction. According to the State Department, we now plan a) to issue stern warnings to the Soviets and the Illegal Aliens: Predators Or Prey?

Much has been made of the adverse impact of illegal aliens on the American economy. According to ICF Inc., a public-policy consulting firm in Washington, D.C., foreigners living illegally in the United States cost the federal government $13-billion a year. The money is lost through the direct payment of such benefits as food stamps and Medicaid and indirectly through the aliens' evasion of income taxes, their remittances to relatives at home, and the loss of income by American citizens.

The $13-billion figure is only an informed guess, however, and it may well be overly conservative. No one knows for sure how many illegal immigrants are living in the United States. Estimates usually range from four to seven million, but the commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), Leonard F. Chapman Jr., has said it could be as high as 12 million, including perhaps as many as one million in New York City.

Only a fraction of the persons who enter the United States illegally are ever caught, and the number has been rising from year to year. In fiscal year 1965, agents of the INS's investigations and border patrol divisions apprehended 110,371 deportable aliens. In fiscal year 1975, 758,819 were apprehended inside the United States and 800,000 more were turned back at the border.

If illegal aliens prey upon the American economy, it is equally true that they are preyed upon by Americans. Many aliens work at jobs that pay less than the federal minimum wage. They dare not complain lest they be detected and deported. A Labor Department study of 793 apprehended illegal aliens found

Illegal aliens also are victimized by brokers who, for fees ranging from $500 to $3,000, arrange for them to marry American citizens. Unless they are detected by INS officials, such fraudulent marriages of convenience can enable aliens to obtain permanent-resident status.

Robbers have discovered that illegal aliens are ideal victims, for they dare not report their loss to the police. The problem appears to be especially acute along the U.S.-Mexican border. On March 29, for instance, six illegal aliens were attacked by a gang of American youths as they crossed the border into San Diego. The youths took about $2,000 in cash and $60 in jewelry from the group. A second gang attacked the aliens later that day, but there was nothing left to take.

At present, the INS is empowered only to deport illegal aliens. It has no authority to take action against employers who knowingly hire them. Legislation sponsored by Rep. Peter J. Rodino (D-N.J.) would provide such authority and prescribe fines and imprisonment for violators. The measure has been passed twice by the House, but it has gotten nowhere in the Senate.

Opponents of the Rodino bill argue that it might have unintended consequences. Employers, it is said, would play it safe by refusing to hire even naturalized citizens who could be mistaken for illegal aliens. Complaints of job discrimination against minority groups inevitably would follow. In short, the illegal-alien problem is an "ethnic issue." And no prudent politician wants to fool around with one of those in an election year.

Henry Kissinger A Complex Man

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger strides into the press conference dramatically late, flanked by two sturdy built young men with bald faces.

They station themselves to his left and right, and through the session they look from front to back across the sea of reporters, who have already passed through two security checks before being allowed into the room. No photographer — or reporter — is allowed to the rear of an imaginary line running directly through Kissinger's speaking stand.

I would feel happier with a man with less ego, less insecurity and more or less at peace with himself, and with those who work for him if they are honest men who differ.

It must be noted in this regard that Kissinger steps in to get staff men removed, or transferred, over in the Pentagon, if they disagree with his proposals and word of their disagreement gets back to him.

It must be noted, too, that Kissinger has taken pride in his ability to manipulate men, whether men under him at the White House and the State Department, or those he deals with in interdepartmental conferences or in meetings with officials from other nations. Kissinger has a way of moving from generality to generality so rapidly, taking full advantage of his fluency with English and the ambiguities of his deliberately Germanic grammar, that he frequently approves something those present find in retrospect that they do not understand at all.

Some become angry beyond words when they learn that he has used their names and approval for programs or deals they are dead set against.

Since Kissinger uses the same techniques in international deals, leaving each side to believe its own interpretation of the arrangements made, and since, as time goes on, the parties then learn the Kissinger arrangement is not what they thought, each side then tends to accuse the other of treachery.

Cubans against intervention in southern Africa, while at the same time) by issuing louder and louder calls for "majority rule."

This is not a policy, it's a joke. The only way majority rule, as it's called, will come to South Africa is through massive Soviet and Cuban military action. The South Africans are more than a match militarily for any force now on the African continent or foreseeable there. Nor is Soviet-Cuban intervention going to be deterred by stern warnings.

Secretary Kissinger keeps stating that there is only one alternative to detente, namely nuclear warfare, blowing up the world.

But there is a clear alternative to detente. A nuclear war is no more in the Soviets' interest than ours, so Kissinger should cease threatening us with it as we're uniquely vulnerable.

Instead of the present bankrupt policy we should 1) State plainly that we will counter the expansion of Soviet influence in areas strategic to the U.S. at any necessary level of force 2) Inform the Soviets that our vastly superior economy will be harnessed to our own needs and those of like-minded and allied states and not to bailing out the Soviets or providing them with advanced technology; and 3)

Group Here Prepares Convicts For 'Outside'

Twin Cities Opportunity In 9th Year Of Prison Counseling

By MIKE WYNARDEN

Staff Writer

A person sitting in a prison cell has a lot of time to think. We try to provide a link with society outside and to guide him towards a productive goal once he is released."

That, according to Bill Tolbert, president of Twin Cities Opportunity, Inc. (TCO), is the purpose of the voluntary organization which seeks to rehabilitate prisoners from southwestern Michigan and aid in their readjustment to society once they are released.

The only program of its kind in Michigan, Twin Cities Opportunity, Inc., was founded nine years ago to find out "why parolees go sour," according to Tolbert, a manual production supervisor at Heath Co. in St. Joseph.

Today, the group is comprised of some 30 members, half of whom are community members and half of whom are ex-convicts. Members of the group travel every two weeks to Jackson and Ionia state prisons to talk and provide guidance to southwestern Michigan residents in prison.

TCO also meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the YMCA, Benton Harbor, to discuss problems of readjustment with persons who have recently been released from prison.

In addition, members check out job leads and home placement for soon-to-be released prisoners by contacting employers, friends and family prior to the parolee's release.

Tolbert said the group is seeking more volunteers to talk with prisoners and parolees. "We tell our inmate members that society does care about them and we try to convince society that most inmates want to become good citizens," Tolbert said. "Yet, we take all too few citizens as guests for face-to-face encounters."

Samuel Crittle, formerly of Buchanan, now an inmate at Southern Michigan prison, Jackson, is enrolled in the TCO program. He wrote The Herald-Palladium:

"TCO's main function is to try and open access to the community to the man who is returning from prison. All too often this access is denied. Many people are not aware of this fact. Some simply aren't interested. It really is a tragedy more people don't realize the beautiful potential most men in prison have to help build and support a community. All that is needed by such men is to feel accepted and be given a chance."

"...I would like to express heart-felt appreciation and gratitude in behalf of all the members of TCO here in Jackson, to all the members out there who have given so much of their time, love, and resources where it's really needed so much."

Although the organization keeps no records on the success ratio of parolees, Tolbert said the program appears to be effective. "We watch the crime news in the newspaper," he said, "and we don't see many parolees in the program returning to crime."

Tolbert said Twin Cities Opportunity, Inc., receives an annual contribution of $3,100 from the Area Resources Improvement Council (ARIC) to help pay travel and expenses. He added that considering the costs of keeping a person in jail ($5,000 to $10,000), "We more than earn our keep if we keep one person out of jail a year."

PETITION STUDIED

Firing Of Rodez Rumored Again

Rumors have again circulated that Benton Harbor Police Chief Andrew Rodez will be fired.

City Manager James Peeples, Jr., said yesterday that he has received a petition asking for the firing of Rodez. He said he has not taken any action on the petition yet.

Peeples said he did not know how many signatures were on the petition, but said several of the signers did not live in the city.

Rodez said this morning he had no comment on the reports and will "wait and see" what happens.

Rodez filed suit April 26 seeking $200,000 damages for statements allegedly made by City Commissioner Helen Ford against Mayor Charles Joseph.

Also named defendants in the suit are Mayor Joseph and four other members of the city commission.

In February, rumors circulated that Benton Harbor Police Chief Andrew Rodez will be fired. City Manager James Peeples, Jr., said yesterday that he has received a petition asking for the firing of Rodez. He said he has not taken any action on the petition yet.

The petition seeking the ouster of Rodez surfaced after a disturbance at city hall following the city commission meeting last Monday night.

Recall leader Maurice Bishop was arrested on a charge of creating a disturbance and City Atty. Benjamin Logan was arrested on a charge of assault and battery against Bishop as a result of that disturbance.

Berrien Prosecutor John Smietanka, however, reported Tuesday that police reports on the two arrests were "too sketchy" to justify authorization of the charges.

Salvation Army Advisory Board Officers Seated

The four incumbent officers of the Benton Harbor Salvation Army advisory board were installed for new terms last night at the annual report meeting held in the Army's community center, 91 Hinckley Street. The officers are Richard Seel of Stevensville, board chairman; Atty. Lester Page of Benton Harbor, vice chairman; D. Carter Cook of St. Joseph, treasurer; and Mrs. Roger (Joan) Murray of Berrien Springs, secretary.

Also installed as a member of the board of directors was Dr. W. Gale Cutler of St. Joseph. He was appointed to the board for a three-year term to fill a vacancy left by Stanley Roper, who has moved to Phoenix, Ariz.

The annual meeting was attended by about 75 people and highlighted by an address by Maj. Earl Polesley, director of the Salvation Army Headquarters in Grand Rapids and divisional commander for Salvation Army operations in western Michigan and northern Indiana.

Maj. George R. Collins, commanding officer of the Benton Harbor Citadel, gave highlights of the financial statement that showed receipts of $181,560 and expenses of $179,800 during the year ending Dec. 31, 1975.

He said $36,548 of the Citadel's income came from the Bicentennial United Way allocation and the remainder from other public support and revenue.

Expenses included $100,184 for program services, $66,798 for supporting services and $12,929 for dues and support payments to Salvation Army headquarters.

Collins reported that 6,733 people were assisted by the Benton Harbor Citadel during 1975 compared to 4,293 during 1974.

Barn Fire

ALLEGAN — Fire destroyed a barn and its contents worth an estimated $14,000 near here yesterday, according to Allegan Sheriff's deputies.

The Allegan fire department was called to the fire at 1070 34th street about 2:30 p.m. by owner Milton (Boots) Herring, according to deputies.

Family wiring is believed to have caused the blaze which killed a horse, 10 rabbits, two ducks and destroyed 125 gallons of maple syrup and 800 syrup buckets, deputies said.

State Justice Will Speak Here Tuesday

The luncheon, scheduled for 12:15 p.m. next Tuesday at the Rameda Inn in Benton Township, is being sponsored by the Berrien County Bar association in connection with Law Day 1976.

Reservations for the luncheon may be made by calling 633-0161 no later than next Monday, according to Atty. Creighton F. Kline of St. Joseph, Law Day chairman.

Tickets for the luncheon are $4 per person.

Benton Harbor City Manager

James Peeples Jr. has announced plans to repay an estimated $1 million in delinquent property taxes and also is seeking reimbursement of some $270,000 in federal funds the city invested in federal programs operated by the city, such as the Neighborhood Development pension fund and the general employees' pension fund with revenue from delinquent taxes and federal funds owed the city.

He said he is researching means to enforce payment of more than $730,000 in delinquent property taxes and also is seeking reimbursement of some $270,000 in federal funds the city invested in federal programs operated by the city, such as the Neighborhood Development Program.

Peeples told The Herald-Palladium yesterday he did not have time to provide specific information on the loans or repayment and that he was "tired of being blamed" for the problem, which he said he inherited when he became city manager Feb. 23.

At Monday's city commission meeting, he said borrowing from pension funds was a long-standing practice, but one he considers "bad management."

He said the city borrowed $130,000 in 1970 and another $200,000 in 1971 from the police-fire pension fund during Don Stewart's tenure as city manager and borrowed $300,000 from the same fund in 1974, when Charles Morrison was city manager.

The city is prohibited from borrowing any more money from the police and firemen's pension fund until further court order under an injunction issued last week in Berrien Circuit court.

The injunction also stipulated that any loan from the fund currently outstanding to the city not be renewed or extended without the court's approval.

The city in 1975 borrowed a total of $500,000 from the police-fire pension fund at a 6.35 per cent interest rate. That loan now is due Aug. 3.

Louise Merrill, secretary of the general employees' pension board, said there is no record in the board minutes of how much the city has borrowed from the general pension fund, and added that "to my knowledge, none of the loans was approved" by the pension board.

She said the pension board agreed in principle to loan the city money to meet cash-flow problems "whenever the need arises" on the basis of a letter he signed by Morrison and Peeples, who was finance director at the time.

But she said that board minutes indicate no specific requests for funds or approval of loans, although she has been told the city has borrowed $500,000 from the general pension fund since that time.

Carl Brown, a former board member, said that one loan was made in October, 1975, adding that "I was on the pension board at that time and it (the loan) was made without my knowledge."

Mrs. Merrill said she was called by the finance department auditor last week seeking the rate of interest or term of the loan or loans from the general pension fund, but that there was no record of any loans in the board minutes.

Peeples said Benton Harbor has appropriated $80,000 in the 1976-77 budget to pay interest on the outstanding loans, which were made to meet payrolls and pay bills while awaiting revenue from other sources.

He said he met recently with officials of the Municipal Finance Commission to determine methods of improving the city's financial position and stressed that he never would borrow from the pension funds again.

"I would have cut costs before getting trapped like this," he said. "The budget and audits should have been carefully analyzed so we would not have been in this financial position now."

Twin Cities Opportunity In 9th Year Of Prison Counseling

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

"A person sitting in a prison cell has a lot of time to think. We try to provide a link with society outside and to guide him towards a productive goal once he is released."

That, according to Bill Tolbert, president of Twin Cities Opportunity, Inc. (TCO), is the purpose of the voluntary organization which seeks to rehabilitate prisoners from southwestern Michigan and aid in their readjustment to society once they are released.

The only program of its kind in Michigan, Twin Cities Opportunity, Inc., was founded nine years ago to find out "why parolees go sour," according to Tolbert, manual production supervisor at Heath Co. in St. Joseph.

Today, the group is comprised of some 30 members, half of whom are community members and half of whom are ex-convicts. Members of the group travel every two weeks to Jackson and Ionia state prisons to talk and provide guidance to southwestern Michigan residents in prison.

TCO also meets every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the YMCA, Benton Harbor, to discuss problems of readjustment with persons who have recently been released from prison.

In addition, members check out job leads and home placement for soon-to-be released prisoners by contacting employers, friends and family prior to the parolee's release.

Tolbert said the group is seeking more volunteers to talk with prisoners and parolees. "We tell our inmate members that society does care about them and we try to convince society that most inmates want to become good citizens," Tolbert said. "Yet, we take all too few citizens as guests for face-to-face encounters."

Samuel Crittle, formerly of Buchanan, now an inmate in Southern Michigan prison, Jackson, is enrolled in the TCO program. He wrote The Herald-Palladium:

"TCO's main function is to try and open access to the community to the man who is returning from prison. All too often this access is denied. Many people are not aware of this fact. Some simply aren't interested. It really is a tragedy more people don't realize the beautiful potential most men in prison have to help build and support a community. All that is needed by such men is to be given a chance."

"...I would like to express heart-felt appreciation and gratitude in behalf of all the members of TCO here in Jackson, to all the members out there who have given so much of their time, love, and resources where it's really needed so much."

Although the organization keeps no records on the success ratio of parolees, Tolbert said the program appears to be effective. "We watch the crime news in the newspaper," he said, "and we don't see many parolees in the program returning to crime."

Tolbert said Twin Cities Opportunity, Inc., receives an annual contribution of $3,100 from the Area Resources Improvement Council (ARIC) to help pay travel and expenses. He added that considering the costs of keeping a person in jail ($5,000 to $10,000), "We more than earn our keep if we keep one person out of jail a year."

Salvation Army Advisory Board Officers Seated

The four incumbent officers of the Benton Harbor Salvation Army advisory board were installed for new terms last night at the annual report meeting held in the Army's community center, 91 Hinkley street. The officers are Richard Seel of Stevensville, board chairman; Atty. Lester Page of Benton Harbor, vice chairman; D. Carter Cook of St. Joseph, treasurer; and Mrs. Roger (Joan) Murray of Berrien Springs, secretary.

Also installed as a member of the board of directors was Dr. W. Gale Cutler of St. Joseph. He was appointed to the board for a three-year term to fill a vacancy left by Stanley Roper, who has moved to Phoenix, Ariz.

The annual meeting was attended by about 75 people and highlighted by an address by Maj. Earl Poldley, director of the Salvation Army headquarters in Grand Rapids and divisional commander for Salvation Army operations in western Michigan and northern Indiana.

Maj. George R. Collins, commanding officer of the Benton Harbor citadel, gave highlights of the financial statement that showed receipts of $181,550 and expenses of $179,920 during the year ending Dec. 31, 1975.

He said $38,548 of the citadel's income came from the Blossomtime United Way allocation and the remainder from other public support and revenue.

Expenses included $100,194 for program services, $66,796 for supporting services and $12,929 for dues and support payments to Salvation Army headquarters.

Collins reported that 6,733 people were assisted by the Benton Harbor citadel during 1975 compared to 4,293 during 1974.

Niles Driver Is Charged In Death Of SJ Woman

Berrien Prosecutor John Smitanka yesterday authorized a warrant charging a Niles man with negligent homicide resulting from a two-car crash Tuesday which killed a 21-year-old St. Joseph woman. The warrant was issued against Mark Conn, 27, after an investigation by the prosecutor's office and Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township police into the accident at Hollywood and Hinchman roads near Berrien Springs. Killed in the crash was Carol Ann Graebner, 21, of 2724 Lake Bluff Terrace, St.

Joseph, whose auto flipped over onto its top and landed in a vineyard. Conn's counsel, Atty. James Jesse, indicated Conn was to have turned himself in to authorities this morning for arraignment in Berrien Fifth District court. The warrant accuses Conn of negligence by allegedly running a stop sign and colliding with the Graebner car and driving while intoxicated. Conn, police reported, sustained minor injuries in the crash.

The husband of Benton Harbor City Commissioner Barbara Huckaby said today his wife is currently on vacation in California. William G. Huckaby was questioned after Mrs. Huckaby was absent from two consecutive city commission meetings. Mrs. Huckaby is a member of the Clean Slate group of city commissioners, who along with Mayor Charles Joseph, are objects of a recall election May 18.

PETITION STUDIED

Firing Of Rodez Rumored Again

Rumors have again circulated that Benton Harbor Police Chief Andrew Rodez will be fired.

City Manager James Peeples, Jr., said yesterday that he has received a petition asking for the firing of Rodez. He said he has not taken any action on the petition yet.

Peeples said he did not know how many signatures were on the petition, but said several of the signers did not live in the city.

Rodez said this morning he had no comment on the reports and will "wait and see" what happens.

Peeples Announces Plan To Repay $1 Million To BH Pension Funds

By JIM DeLAND
Assistant City Editor

Benton Harbor City Manager James Peeples Jr. has announced plans to repay an estimated $1 million the city has borrowed from two employee pension funds and declared it is his intention "never to borrow from the two funds again."

Peeples said he intends to pay off loans of some $500,000 each from the police and firemen's pension fund and the general employees' pension fund with revenue from delinquent taxes and federal funds owed the city.

He said he is researching means to enforce payment of more than $750,000 in delinquent property taxes and also is seeking reimbursement of some $270,000 in federal funds the city invested in federal programs operated by the city, such as the Neighborhood Development Program.

Peeples told The Herald-Palladium yesterday he did not have time to provide specific information on the loans or repayment and that he was "tired of being blamed" for the problem, which he said he inherited when he became city manager Feb. 23.

At Monday's city commission meeting, he said borrowing from pension funds was a long-standing practice but one he considers "bad management."

He said the city borrowed $130,000 in 1970 and another $200,000 in 1971 from the police-fire pension fund during Don Stewart's tenure as city manager and borrowed $300,000 from the same fund in 1974, when Charles Morrison was city manager.

The city is prohibited from borrowing any more money from the police and firemen's pension fund until further court order under an injunction issued last week in Berrien Circuit court.

The athletic program is self-sustaining with receipts from ticket sales, special promotion events and bingo.

Welch said the budget includes $3,600 for new lockers. He said other expenses are due to an expanded program and higher costs of materials and equipment. He said 562 of the 855 students in the Catholic school system participate in the athletic program.

A total of 32 teams are fielded in interscholastic sports not counting physical education and intramural activities. The athletic budget also includes cheerleading.

Gentry said the meeting between representatives of the board and the athletic association would clear up a number of questions "I am sure the board members have."

The school board at its March 16 meeting increased tuition rates to offset higher costs of operation. The increases were generally opposed by parents.

Welch said the athletic association "is not unaware of the board's plight" and said any questions on specific programs and expenses would be welcome. He said expansion of the athletic program had been decreed years ago, especially regarding girls' sports.

The board heard the first report on enrollment since the tuition increase decision. High School Principal Donald Stock said that of the 331 students in the ninth, tenth and eleventh grades, 270 have enrolled for 1976-77.

No figures on elementary registration were announced. Ray Jordan, administrator, said registration period has not ended and figures were not available. The highest tuition increases occurred at the elementary levels, however.

The board nominated five candidates for an election May 16 to fill two board seats. Nominated were James Bokhart, Frank Cergizian, Robert Korff, Mrs. Diane (Jack) Lents and Frank Stoffle. Not seeking re-election are Gentry and Jack Lents.

The terms of school board members are for three years and those elected take office in July. While the five nominated are all from St. Bernard's parish, all parishioners of the three Catholic parishes will ballot on the candidates.

Brown School PTO Will Stage Fund-Raising Carnival May 14

A fun carnival will be held in the gymnasium of Brown school of the St. Joseph district from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. Friday, May 14, with proceeds used to help finance playground equipment and field trips at the school. The carnival is sponsored by the Brown school Parent-Teacher Organization (PTO) and is open to the public, reported Robert Williams, PTO publicity chairman for the event. He said tickets will be sold for a variety of games. Refreshments will be included.

St. Joe Preschool Hearing, Vision Clinic Slated In June

A hearing and vision testing clinic for preschool children in the St. Joseph school district will be held in June at Washington school, reported Esther Kutz, a school nurse.

She said the program is primarily for children 3 1/2 years of age; or born in 1972, or January and February, 1973. Also, those born in 1971, who have not been tested, are eligible.

The clinic is free and parents may enroll their children by calling Mrs. Kutz at Upton junior high school. The primary purpose of the testing is to find certain types of eye and ear conditions early in order to prevent serious damage. Mrs.

Kutz said the Michigan preschool vision law requires children entering any school in Michigan to have a vision test after age three prior to school entrance.

Members of the St. Joseph Lianas club will assist in making appointments and as receptionists at the clinic.

National Hospital Week

Mercy hospital of Benton Harbor and Memorial hospital of St. Joseph will observe National Hospital Week, May 9-15, with programs built around the theme, "Healthy Birthday, America, 1776-1976."

Activities during the week will include a program on community resource services, a program on rape, and free blood pressure checks for area residents.

The free blood pressure testing will be available Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 14, 15 and 16. Avion Coach Corp. will furnish to the community a mini-motor home in which blood pressure testing will be done for area residents.

The testing will be done by health care workers from both hospitals on Friday, May 14, at Fairplain Plaza from 1 to 7 p.m.; Saturday, May 15, Broad street, St. Joseph, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday, May 16, at K-Mart parking lot, Benton Harbor, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Persons with questionable blood pressure will have the opportunity to return for a second testing Tuesday, May 25. All persons needing further evaluation will then be referred to their own physician or to medical clinics.

R.A. Bradburn, Memorial hospital administrator, said, "Statistics indicate that high blood pressure is a leading cause of death and disability in the United States. It is estimated that about 10 per cent of the men, women and children in this area have the disease. About one-half of those estimated to have it are unaware of it, and only a small portion, approximately one-eighth, have their high blood pressure under control."

The medical profession says, "Few people die of high blood pressure," according to C.T. Loftus, Mercy's executive vice president. "It is the consequences of high blood pressure — stroke, heart disease and kidney damage — that are listed as causes of death. Yet most of the public are unaware that controlling high blood pressure is an important preventative measure that can significantly reduce these secondary causes of death."

On Wednesday, May 12, residents will have the opportunity to become better informed about the services and resources available in the community. There will be booths and table displays in the Forum of Memorial hospital from 1 to 5 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. A representative from each service will be present to answer questions.

State Police Trooper Michael Harbaugh will show the educational film, "How to Say 'No' to a Rapist and Survive," Thursday, May 13, at 7:30 p.m. in Memorial hospital's Forum. An opportunity for asking questions will be provided.

Local Hospitals Recognized For Community Health Care

As accredited hospitals, Mercy of Benton Harbor and Memorial of St. Joseph, have received recognition from the Joint Commission On Accreditation Of Hospitals (JCAH) in observance of National Hospital Week, May 9-15.

The letter of commendation, signed by John D. Porterfield, MD, director of the joint commission contained the following:

"The Joint Commission On Accreditation Of Hospitals commends your hospital for striving to deliver the optimum in health care to the community. Your participation in the process of voluntary accreditation is an expression of a professionally motivated commitment to deliver a high quality of patient care. The fact that you are accredited is evidence that your efforts toward this goal are successful."

Accreditation is awarded to hospitals that are found to be in substantial compliance with the Joint Commission's high standards for the quality of patient care provided. The Standards are considered to be optimal achievable and represent goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the Joint Commission's accreditation survey team.

Voluntary accreditation has made a significant contribution to this country's unmatched excellence in health care. It continues the American tradition of self-reliance and it supports the belief that positive motivation is the most effective impetus to change.

Mercy hospital will be entering into community activities in celebration of National Hospital Week, which has as its theme, "Healthy Birthday America." Hospital employees will be displaying "Mercy Hospital Wishes You a Healthy Birthday America" bumper stickers, health questionnaires will be published in the Monitor, the hospital's daily newspaper, and patients will be presented with cards carrying the same theme.

Local Hospitals Recognized For Community Health Care

As accredited hospitals, Mercy of Benton Harbor and Memorial of St. Joseph, have received recognition from the Joint Commission On Accreditation Of Hospitals (JCAH) in observance of National Hospital Week, May 9-15.

The letter of commendation, signed by John D. Portfield, MD, director of the joint commission contained the following:

"The Joint Commission On Accreditation Of Hospitals commends your hospital for striving to deliver the optimum in health care to the community. Your participation in the process of voluntary accreditation is an expression of professionally motivated commitment to deliver a high quality of patient care. The fact that you are accredited is evidence that your efforts toward this goal are successful."

Accreditation is awarded to hospitals that are found to be in substantial compliance with the Joint Commission's high standards for the quality of patient care provided. The Standards are considered to be optimal achievable and represent goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the Joint Commission's accreditation survey team.

Voluntary accreditation has made a significant contribution to this country's unmatched excellence in health care. It continues the American tradition of self-reliance and it supports the belief that positive motivation is the most effective impetus to change.

Mercy hospital will be entering into community activities in celebration of National Hospital Week, which has as its theme, "Healthy Birthday America." Hospital employees will be displaying "Mercy Hospital Wishes You a Healthy Birthday America!" bumper stickers, health questionnaires will be published in the Monitor, the hospital's daily newspaper, and patients will be presented with cards carrying the same theme.

First Mother's Day Observed In 1908

Mother's Day was originated 68 years ago by a woman who was never a mother herself.

In 1908, according to Sally Hopkins, researcher for a leading greeting card manufacturer, a church service was held in Grafton, W.Va., at the request of Anna M. Jarvis to honor her mother, who had died two years earlier, and motherhood in general.

Miss Jarvis, an unmarried school teacher, then began a tireless one-woman campaign, writing to scores of politicians, businessmen and opinion leaders to further her idea of an annual Mother's Day.

Success came six years later, in 1914, when President Woodrow Wilson issued a proclamation making Mother's Day an official national celebration.

Many nations now follow the American custom of honoring mothers on the second Sunday in May. According to researchers, the event is also recognized in Austria, Canada, Mexico, Japan, the West Indies, parts of Africa and in most Central and South American countries. In England "Mothering Sunday," the fourth Sunday in Lent, has been celebrated since the 17th century.

Carnations, known to botanists as Dianthus Caryophyllus, are the official flowers of Mother's Day. According to Hopkins, the carnation-wearing custom began in 1908, when Miss Jarvis handed out white carnations at the church service honoring motherhood. They had been her mother's favorite flowers. Later, it became customary on Mother's Day to wear a red carnation for a living mother and a white one for the deceased.

Mother's Day ranks fourth as a card-sending occasion, behind Christmas, Valentine's Day and Easter, but ahead of Father's Day and Halloween. Mothers are expected to get more than 100 million cards this year, says editor Alan Doan.

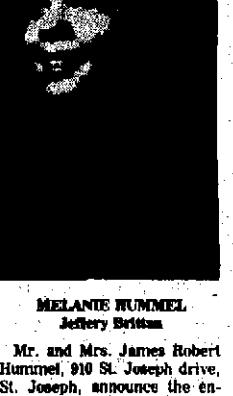

The messages in Mother's Day cards, according to Doan, are often much longer than those for other occasions. "People seem to want to send Mom as much love as possible," he says. "While most cards today have short sentiments, longer traditional verse is popular on Mother's Day — sometimes as long as two dozen lines."

Your Problems' By Ann Landers

At 70 All Have Wrinkles

Dear Ann Landers: Please forgive me if I sound crude. I don't know quite how to say this but I will do my best.

I was married at 19 and shared 46 wonderful years with my husband before he died. After I'd been alone for eight years a fine widower, one year my senior, asked me to marry him.

Actually, I would love to be his wife but fear and shame are holding me back. When I look at myself unclothed before the full-length bathroom mirror, I realize my flabby, wrinkled body would not be much of a prize for any man.

What can I do or say? We are very congenial. The subject of sex has never come up. Thank you, and God bless. — 73

Dear 73: If the gentleman was interested in a firm, young body, he probably could have found one.

I hope you will not keep him waiting another moment, say "YES" today.

The picture he presents included before a full-length bathroom mirror will not be very different from yours.

Just Golf

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and Mr. K have become great golf buddies. I never cared for Mr. K but his wife is even worse. We have had them to dinner and cards three times in the last six weeks and each time they become more unbearable.

They both drink too much, want to quit playing cards and dance. I'm beginning to suspect they are really after a "switchman's picnic."

I've had to take Mr. K's hands off my backside and put him in his place regularly. Mrs. K hangs all over my husband and has a way of snuggling up to that infuriates me.

The last time they were here, I ended up fixing breakfast.

(They stayed until six a.m.) When they left I felt exhausted, insulted and used.

My husband agrees the Ks are not our type, says we don't have to entertain them any more, but last night Mrs. K called and invited us to their place and he accepted! What should I do? — Middle Muddle

Dear Mid Muddle: Make it clear to your husband that the next dinner with the Odd Couple will be the last.

Tell him if he wants to play golf with Mr. K, fine and dandy, but the foursome is boresome, as well as destructive to your marriage, and you want nothing more to do with them.

Invite Them

Dear Ann: Our 23-year-old son told us last night that he and his sweetheart want to be married in July, in our living room.

Ella is a lovely girl. She and Don have gone together for three years. The problem: We have never met Ella's parents. Don says they are "peculiar" and will probably not come to the wedding. We feel uncomfortable about the situation and don't know what to do. Will you please enlighten us? — Quan-

Philippine Artifacts On Display At SMC

DOWAGIAC — A collection of late 19th and early 20th century Philippine weaponry and artifacts are on display in the O'Leary building Art Gallery at Southwestern Michigan college through Friday, May 14.

The exhibit may be viewed Monday through Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.; Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Saturday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The display was obtained by United States Army Major General Harry Hill Bandholm while serving in the Philippine Islands from 1902 to 1912 and purchased from his widow in 1963 by Grafton H. Cook, Chicago, formerly of Dowagiac, who later donated it to SMC.

Part or all of the collection was once displayed at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, the American Museum of Natural History in New York and the Seattle Exposition in 1912. Nothing has been added to the present inventory since its return from the museum in 1915.

Included in the collection are barongs (heavy sheath knives), basketwork, bolos (machetes), bows and arrows, carvings and animal horns; hats and helmets, kris (daggers), musical instruments, shields, spears, swords and miscellaneous items such as pottery, canes and wearing apparel.

That started the fight and we were appealed to.

We hate to decide in favor of a partner who criticizes success, but South did not play the clubs the best way. He should have won the first spade in dummy and led a club to his 10. With clubs breaking 3-3 it didn't matter which way he played the suit. But had they broken 4-2 as they do some 48½ per cent of the time, he would only have scored four club tricks if one opponent held the doubleton queen-jack. The correct play would produce four club tricks against many more combinations.

If today's hand were played in any duplicate anywhere the chances are that every declarer would play three notrump and make either four or five odd depending on whether or not he lost a heart trick.

Nevertheless it did cause a real argument at one table in Dallas. South won the spade lead in his own hand, cashed his ace of clubs, led the 10 of clubs to dummy's king and a third club. He lost that trick and the ace of diamonds to wind up with a tie for top but his partner said, "You played the clubs wrong."

I know that doctors don't want to take X-rays of the breast too often. Is the "heat test" just as dangerous?

Mrs. A.J. Penn.

Dear Mrs. J.:

Let me assure you immediately that doctors specializing in mammography (X-ray of the breasts) are extremely careful to avoid radiation hazards.

You must have faith in your doctor's judgment. This rule applies to periodic X-rays of the chest, the teeth and other organs.

The "heat test" you refer to is known as "thermography." This is an important addition to all other methods (including X-ray) of cancer detection of the breast. Heat patterns can be studied without any hazard and without any danger to the patient.

Ford Role Reversed On Panama Canal

By GEORGE GEDDA

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine years ago, Congressman Gerald R. Ford was worried about the Johnson administration negotiating away the Panama Canal and he indignantly argued that the Communist threat to the Canal Zone is a real danger.

Now it's Ford's administration that is negotiating on the future of the Canal Zone and it's Ronald Reagan who is voicing the criticism.

It is obvious that Ford's perception of the canal problem has changed markedly since his days as a congressman from Grand Rapids, Mich.

As did his two predecessors in the White House, Ford now believes that the best way to preserve American interests in the canal area is through a new treaty arrangement with Panama.

But candidate Reagan, echoing Ford's 1967 views, accuses Ford of tampering with the national interest and vows that, if elected, he will keep the canal and the zone in American hands.

"They're not ours to keep," replies Ford, adding that if Reagan has his way, the Panama Canal may become "another Vietnam."

"Another Suez," responds Reagan, implicitly warning of a canal shutdown if the administration maintains its present policy.

Campaigning in Indiana on Sunday, Reagan said he would go to the same lengths to protect U.S. interests in Panama that he would take "to keep someone from taking Alaska away from us." Asked if he would be willing to go to war to protect the canal, Reagan said, "I don't think there's ever been a president who wouldn't have had to say yes."

But in Nebraska on Wednesday, Reagan said he doubted the Panamanians would create an incident over the canal "that would shut down their own economy."

Reagan said if it were up to him, he would negotiate any sore spots over the canal, adding, "I'd never want to just slap them (the Panamanians) in the face."

The canal has often been described as the most ambitious engineering undertaking of all time and, as Reagan has found out, the project has a strong emotional significance for many Americans.

But even though negotiations for a new treaty have been going on for more than 11 years, there is widespread confusion about the legal basis for the American presence and the administration's purposes in the negotiations.

The following attempts to answer some of the questions raised in the current debate over the canal issue:

Q: Is the Canal Zone U.S. property?

A: The United States in 1903 bought from the fledgling Republic of Panama rights — and not property — in the zone for $10 million. Panama retains "titular sovereignty" in the area while the United States "acts as if it were the sovereign." Thus, the transaction was not analogous to the Louisiana or Alaska purchases where the United States bought the territory outright.

Ford Role Reversed On Panama Canal

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine years ago, Congressman Gerald R. Ford was worried about the Johnson administration negotiating away the Panama Canal and he indignantly argued that "the Communist threat to the Canal Zone is a real danger."

Now it's Ford's administration that is negotiating on the future of the Canal Zone and it's Ronald Reagan who is voicing the criticism.

It is obvious that Ford's perception of the canal problem has changed markedly since his days as a congressman from Grand Rapids, Mich.

As did his two predecessors in the White House, Ford now believes that the best way to preserve American interests in the canal area is through a new treaty arrangement with Panama.

But candidate Reagan, echoing Ford's 1967 views, accuses Ford of tampering with the national interest and vows that, if elected, he will keep the canal and the zone in American hands.

"They're not ours to keep," replies Ford, adding that if Reagan has his way, the Panama Canal may become "another Vietnam."

"Another Suez," responds Reagan, implicitly warning of a canal shutdown if the administration maintains its present policy.

Campaigning in Indiana on Sunday, Reagan said he would go to the same lengths to protect U.S. interests in Panama that he would take "to keep someone from taking Alaska away from us." Asked if he would be willing to go to war to protect the canal, Reagan said, "I don't think there's ever been a president who wouldn't have had to say yes."

But in Nebraska on Wednesday, Reagan said he doubted the Panamanians would create an incident over the canal "that would shut down their own economy."

Reagan said if it were up to him, he would negotiate any sore spots over the canal, adding, "I'd never want to just slap them (the Panamanians) in the face."

The canal has often been described as the most ambitious engineering undertaking of all time and, as Reagan has found out, the project has a strong emotional significance for many Americans.

But even though negotiations

for a new treaty have been going on for more than 11 years, there is widespread confusion about the legal basis for the American presence and the administration's purposes in the negotiations.

The following attempts to answer some of the questions raised in the current debate over the canal issue:

Commission Unveils Health Plan

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Basic public health services would be made available to all Michigan residents, regardless of where they live or their ability to pay, under the sweeping proposals of a commission established by the governor.

A 441-page Public Health Code was written by the commission and presented to Gov. William Milliken on Wednesday. Milliken gave no indication whether he supports the recommendations of the 23-member commission he established more than 1½ years ago.

Rep. Raymond Hood and Sen. John Otterbacher, chairmen of the legislature's public health committee, planned to introduce on Thursday a 60-page bill and eight companion measures incorporating the proposals.

Services to be guaranteed under the proposal would include communicable disease control, immunization and maternal and infant care. The list of such basic services, to be drawn up by the Department of Public Health, would not necessarily be the same for all areas of the state, members of the commission said.

A central information network would be established to tell people where they can get help.

The state currently pays 8 percent of the local public health care costs, with the communities paying the remainder. Under the proposal, the state contribution would increase to 50 percent over the next four years.

The proposal also would:

—Revamp licensing laws to require relicensing of medical professionals every four years after they prove their continued competency.

—Change penalties for medical facilities which violate public health laws. Daily fines of $1,000 would force compliance, code writers say, rather than forcing the Public Health Department to close the facility to get results.

—Require one unannounced inspection each year of Michigan nursing homes, apart from routine checks following complaints.

—Require the disclosure of ownership in health-related facilities.

—Allow unlicensed people with proper training to do things like give immunization shots when an epidemic threatens, take blood pressures and do vision and hearing tests under a physician's supervision.

Members of the commission included 11 legislators and 12 others appointed by Milliken. About 100 other persons worked as a staff for the commission.

Stack Plunge Probe Begins

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — State labor department investigators today hoped to find out why a wire work cage plunged 300 feet down a Detroit Edison Co. smokestack, killing four workers.

Investigators sealed off the area at the facility in Monroe hours after Tuesday's accident and planned a thorough examination today, said Labor Department spokesman Jack Burdock. He said two witnesses also would be interviewed.

Burdock said there was apparently no break in the five-eighths-inch-thick cable which supported the cage. He said the cable was draped over a cablehead at the top of the 800-foot stack and a break in the wheel like device may have been responsible for the fall.

He said the rigging, set up by Detroit Edison, was supposed to have a fail-safe emergency system.

"We don't know if those devices were operative or even installed," he added.

The dead were identified as William Browning, 30, of Maumee, Ohio; Frank Montgomery, 38, of Toledo; Pablo Ramirez, 30, also of Toledo; and Edward Sieder Jr., 26, of Temperance.

All were employees of William Ferrel Inc., a Toledo contracting firm repairing and replacing steel supports in the stack. Authorities said five men were in the cage while it was being lifted to the top of the stack. Police said that when the cage reached the 200-foot mark, one of the men stepped off onto a landing and the basket resumed its climb. It suddenly broke loose at about the 300-foot level and dropped to the ground.

The worker on the second floor landing, Richard Hoffman, from Sylvania, Ohio, and a sixth worker, Jessie Thomas, 31, of Temperance, who was operating the hoist from the ground, were not hurt, police said.

In December, Samuel Winfree, 54, of Taylor, fell 80-feet to his death inside a furnace pipe as he was laying bricks at the Monroe plant. Winfree worked for the A.P. Gruen Construction Co. of Detroit.

U.S. Spends $9.6 Billion In State

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The federal government spent $9.6 billion in Michigan last year, the bulk of it in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, a Michigan State University economist reports.

Wayne County, which has more federal employees than any other Michigan county, got $2.85 billion in 1975, and Oakland County got $676 million, reports David L. Verway, associate professor in the Bureau of Business, in an article for the Michigan State Economic Record. He said Macomb County got $224 million, mostly to employ civilians at the U.S. Army Tank Command in Warren.

Receiving the fewest federal dollars last year was the Upper Peninsula's Keweenaw County with $2.9 million, Verway said.

The largest chunk of Michigan's federal money — some $4.7 billion — came from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, he reported.

Michigan's federal allotment was less than 3 per cent of the national federal expenditures, even though the state has 4.3 per cent of the U.S. population and 4.7 per cent of the national tax burden, Verway said.

The discrepancy between what Michigan pays in taxes and what it gets back in federal funds is due to the state's few defense contracts or military bases, Verway said.

"Michigan just isn't a strategic location for the kind of industry the defense department wants," he said.

Michigan got $1.2 billion from the Department of Defense last year, most of it to employ people at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base in Marquette, at Wurtsmith Air Force Base in Iosco County and at Kinceloe Air Force Base in Chippewa County, Verway said.

John McFarlin, 62, swore the marriage was never consummated.

His First Kiss Was His Last

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A wealthy oilman wants a jury to nullify a $500,000 marriage contract between himself and his younger wife.

John McFarlin, 62, swore the marriage was never consummated.

"I am eternally grateful to the preacher when he said, 'You may kiss the bride.' That was the last time I ever kissed my wife," McFarlin told the jury in his divorce trial here Wednesday.

JACKSON HOLE, WYO. (AP) — A rancher here feeds his horses at 10 a.m. daily. The horses line up at the hour to trot single-file into the corral gate. Invariably, at the end of the line are three or four moose who have learned of the daily handout, the National Geographic Society reports.

Kincheloe provides 33 per cent of Chippewa County's employment, he said.

U.S. Spends $9.6 Billion In State

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The federal government spent $9.6 billion in Michigan last year, the bulk of it in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, a Michigan State University economist reports.

Wayne County, which has more federal employees than any other Michigan county, got $2.85 billion in 1975 and Oakland County got $876 million, reports David I. Verway, associate professor in the Bureau of Business, in an article for the Michigan State Economic Record. He said Macomb County got $924 million, mostly to employ civilians at the U.S. Army Tank Command in Warren.

Receiving the fewest federal dollars last year was the Upper Peninsula's Keweenaw County with $2.9 million, Verway said.

The largest chunk of Michigan's federal money — some $4.7 billion — came from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, he reported.

Michigan's federal allotment was less than 3 per cent of the national federal expenditures, even though the state has 4.3 per cent of the U.S. population and 4.7 per cent of the national tax burden, Verway said.

The discrepancy between what Michigan pays in taxes and what it gets back in federal funds is due to the state's few defense contracts or military bases, Verway said.

"Michigan just isn't a strategic location for the kind of industry the defense department wants," he said.

Michigan got $1.2 billion from the Department of Defense last year, most of it to employ people at K.I. Sawyer Air Force Base in Marquette, at Wurtsmith Air Force Base in Iosco County and at Kincheloe Air Force Base in Chippewa County, Verway said.

Kincheloe Air Base, which the Pentagon has threatened to close, got $36 million last year, Verway reported. If the Defense Department closes the base, that money probably will be eliminated from Michigan's defense grant, he said.

He said, however, "The Department of Defense Economic Adjustment Committee must coordinate assistance from all the other federal agencies... It might be a rare opportunity for the people at Kincheloe to tap into the other resources of the federal government."

Kincheloe provides 33 per cent of Chippewa County's employment, he said.

His First Kiss Was His Last

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A wealthy oilman wants a jury to nullify a $500,000 marriage contract between himself and his younger wife.

John McFarlin, 62, swore the marriage was never consummated.

"I am eternally grateful to the preacher when he said, 'You may kiss the bride.' That was the last time I ever kissed my wife," McFarlin told the jury in his divorce trial here Wednesday.

Moose Tag Along

'Jar Game' Legislation

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The House advanced legislation allowing licensed bingo organizations to conduct jar games. Jar games, which are not regulated by the state, are games of chance in which numbered paper tickets within a jar correspond to a numbered list of prizes. The bill would allow licensed bingo organizations like fraternities and religious organizations to conduct jar games to raise extra money. Only licensed bingo operations could run jar games. They would have to buy game tickets from the state, much the same way individuals buy lottery tickets now. The state lottery bureau estimates that Michigan's gross jar ticket sale revenues could be between $4 million and $5 million. The bill also contained an attempt to add an amendment legalizing casino gambling. That amendment was introduced by Reps. Josephine Hunsinger and Frank Wierzbicki, both D-Detroit. Mrs. Hunsinger said casino gambling could create more jobs in financially troubled Detroit.

The cub was found in the Smulton area of Centre County, apparently after someone picked it up elsewhere and left it there, far from its mother. The cub will become an inhabitant of the Highland Park Zoo in Pittsburgh. (AP Wirephoto)

Democrats Stonewall Fiscal Year Change

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken's program to balance the state's budget is in danger after Senate Democrats again balked at a bill to extend the current fiscal year by three months.

The extension is estimated to pick up some $104 billion for the current fiscal year, and is part of Milliken's scheme for averting a $280 million deficit. The rest of the package has been approved.

Without the bill, the state faces a shortfall June 30 of more than $100 million despite a constitutional provision requiring a balanced budget.

But some Democrats began talking Wednesday about permitting a deficit at the end of the fiscal year, or delaying payments due in June until July as a way of avoiding either a budget cut or a tax hike.

Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Detroit, who participated in writing the constitution, said that while the state cannot plan a deficit, in advance, there is nothing to prohibit it from falling short at the end of the year and paying it off later.

In a closed-door nose-count, Democrats came up with only 10 to 12 votes for the bill, according to party members. Added to 10 Republican votes, that leaves the measure four to six votes short of the 26 needed for approval.

The bill has passed the House and Senate, but needs a two-thirds vote to go into effect immediately upon the governor's signature. Backers have failed twice to get the needed votes.

Some leaders said another attempt to give the bill immediate effect might be tried Thursday, but others said it is impossible to sway enough votes by then.

Critics of the bill argue it avoids the state's fiscal problems by delaying the time bills must be paid. Some are reluctant to help the governor out of a budgetary problem they consider his making.

"I have a handful of guys who want more money for their special interests," complained Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald, D-Detroit.

Minority Leader Robert Davis, R-Gaylord, said he still believes the extension bill will pass.

The House on Wednesday passed the bill sponsored by Rep. Gary Owen, D-Ypsilanti, 74-22. It would become law as soon as the governor signed it.

The license fees would be used to implement an act creating a Mobile Home Commission to regulate the mobile home industry.

Under the bill, the license fee for a park with 100 or less sites would be $50; the fee for a park with more than 100 sites would be $100.

The measure would expire next Oct. 1. The Department of Commerce has estimated that the license fees would generate between $90,000-$100,000, while the cost of implementing the Mobile Home Commission Act would be about $270,000 through the first 18 months.

Another bill establishing license fees for mobile home dealers would provide most of the difference, analysts said.

Special For Speeders

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — If you're caught speeding May 15-22, State Police will give you a ticket, a lecture — and a booklet advertising the joys of travel in Michigan. It's all part of the State Police role in Michigan Week, says Col. George Halverson, Department of State Police director. Troopers throughout Michigan will give each motorist with whom they come in contact a compact brochure, "Quick Facts About Michigan," containing 50 informative facts about the state.

Suspect Foul Play

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Police said they suspect foul play in Monday night's disappearance of a young New Jersey woman, Lois A. DeRitter, 22, of Prospect Park, N.J., vanished after talking with professors about her prospects for entering graduate school in the fall. Her blue 1966 Volkswagen was found abandoned at a vacant industrial site on the city's west side Tuesday morning. Police said the key was in the ignition and Miss DeRitter's purse was in the back seat. Officers said the car was wiped clean of fingerprints, possibly with a greasy rag.

Protest Police Shooting

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — A crowd of 150 persons Wednesday demanded an investigation of a shooting in which police killed a soldier home on leave. The crowd staged a rally whose organizers said police may have acted unnecessarily in the Monday night shooting of Gregory Jackson, who was killed in the back yard of his great-grandmother's house. Witnesses say he was target-shooting. Police, answering a complaint of shots being fired in the area, said Jackson, 24, pointed his rifle at them as they approached the house on foot. The two policemen were suspended for three days pending a police department probe. The two officers suspended in the shooting are white. Jackson is black and the neighborhood where the shooting occurred is predominantly black.

Presidential Endorsement?

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union hierarchy may discuss whether to endorse a Democratic presidential candidate at a meeting scheduled for today. But Douglas Fraser, a UAW vice president, emphasized late Wednesday night that it is still highly possible the union will not endorse a candidate.

Some UAW officials have lent their support to former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter. In Florida, Arizona Congressman Morris Udall has garnered some UAW backers in Massachusetts and New York. UAW President Leonard Woodcock says he is personally sympathetic to Carter's candidacy.

Youth Discrimination

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state of Michigan has ordered five of the nation's top rent-a-car companies to advertise that they discriminate against young drivers by forcing them to provide proof of financial security not required of older drivers. Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said today that Hertz, Budget, National, Avis and Sears rent-a-car companies have been ordered either to cease advertising in Michigan or say in their advertisements that rent terms are different for young persons.

Twenty-Eight Allegations

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Judicial Tenure Commission has notified Detroit Recorder's Court Judge James Del Rio that 28 allegations of judicial misconduct have been made against him. In a letter sent to Del Rio earlier this year, the commission invited Del Rio to respond to the accusations of pressuring defendants to plead guilty, dismissing criminal cases without cause and harassing defendants and attorneys in his courtroom. Del Rio has yet to respond. He declined to comment on the misconduct allegations, saying he thought it was improper for them to be made public. The allegations are based on a preliminary investigation by the tenure commission, which has been looking into Del Rio's affairs for about a year. The allegations are not formal charges of misconduct. The tenure commission sent the 14-page letter to Del Rio Feb. 25. Normally a judge has 15 days to respond to such allegations, but through his attorney Del Rio has sought an indefinite delay. A copy of the letter was obtained by the Detroit Free Press Tuesday from state Supreme Court files.

Governor, Crim Disagree

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has assured House Speaker Bobby Crim he will journey to Japan if it will persuade the Japanese to build auto plants in Michigan. Milliken also disagreed with the Davison Democrat's accusations that his administration was not aggressive enough in trying to woo foreign capital to Michigan. Crim said Tuesday that Michigan "didn't do much" to try to persuade Volkswagen to locate a plant here, while Ohio and Pennsylvania "aggressively lobbied Volkswagen officials personally." Other states are more aggressive in trying to attract new industries, Crim charged. Michigan, Milliken responded in a two-page letter, "has been extremely aggressive in its pursuit of foreign investment and trade." The governor said Volkswagen decided not to settle in Michigan because the German car-maker needed a one-story building of more than one million square feet, which Michigan did not have.

Ouster Is Upheld

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Roseville School District does not have to reinstate a former superintendent it reassigned because he was never actually demoted, the state appeals court ruled. The court today said that when Charles Bode was reassigned in October 1972 he not demoted in the legal sense because his pay was not reduced. The appeals court ruling affirms a Macomb County Circuit Court decision. That court had reversed a Michigan Teacher Tenure Commission ruling that Bode had to be reinstated. In October 1972 the school board relieved him of his duties and reassigned him as a consultant to the board at the same salary. He continued to receive that salary until his contract expired the following June.

The findings note the political integrity of the black community by sabotaging the work of the black community using the Chamber of Commerce as a vehicle for attack against projects designed to benefit the black community.

The Labor Department's finding was: "There is no evidence that the Berrien county CETA program was used to intimidate anyone in the black community."

The findings also stated that 52 per cent of the people employed under Title I programs were minorities (black, American Indian, and other), 38 per cent were minorities in Title II programs, and 33 per cent were minorities in Title VI programs. It also noted of the same programs, respectively, that 34, 36, and 35 per cent of the employees were women.

"The Michigan Employment Security Commission's statistics indicate that minority group members constitute 25 per cent of the unemployed population of Berrien county," the findings said.

"Based on these statistics, minority groups are not underrepresented in Berrien county's CETA program. Contrary to the allegation, our findings indicate the CETA program in Berrien county is serving the people most in need."

Another allegation was that the county has failed to comply with the Equal Opportunity Commission in having and implementing an Affirmative Action Program.

The findings note the county is in the process of developing an equal employment opportunity policy and . . . the county has submitted an affirmative action plan to the state which is pending revision prior to adoption by the board of commissioners."

The findings note the county was an inequitable distribution of community representation on the CETA board, executive committee and policy-making council — was cleared up at the last county board meeting, when two people employed in CETA programs were appointed to policy-making organizations.

The findings also pointed out the Labor Department was unable to investigate funding and allocation of federal programs to the county health department, as requested by the coalition, because the Labor Department does not have jurisdiction in that area.

"It'll probably be the middle of June before we have a better handle on what's going to happen," he said.

Of a charge that the manpower program and county agencies "intimidate the black community by attempting to use economic reprisals against the outspoken black leaders in the community," the findings hold:

Another allegation contend

"the manpower board works to neutralize the political integrity of the black community by sabotaging the work of the black community using the Chamber of Commerce as a vehicle for attack against projects designed to benefit the black community."

The Labor Department's finding was: "Our investigation could find no evidence to substantiate this allegation."

The findings also stated that 52 per cent of the people employed under Title I programs were minorities (black, American Indian, and other), 38 per cent were minorities in Title II programs, and 33 per cent were minorities in Title VI programs, respectively, that 54, 36, and 35 per cent of the employees were women.

"The Michigan Employment Security Commission's statistics indicate that minority group members constitute 25 per cent of the unemployed population of Berrien county," the findings said.

"Based on these statistics, minority groups are not underrepresented in Berrien county's CETA program. Contrary to the allegation, our findings indicate the CETA program in Berrien county is serving the people most in need."

Another allegation was that the county has failed to comply with the Equal Opportunity Commission in having and implementing an Affirmative Action Program.

The findings note the county "is in the process of developing an equal employment opportunity policy and . . . the county has submitted an affirmative action plan to the state which is pending revision prior to adoption by the board of commissioners."

Another charge was that there was an inequitable distribution of community representation on the CETA board, executive committee and policy-making council — was cleared up at the last county board meeting, when two people employed in CETA programs were appointed to policy-making organizations.

The findings also pointed out the Labor Department was unable to investigate funding and allocation of federal programs to the county health department, as requested by the coalition, because the Labor Department does not have jurisdiction in that area.

"It'll probably be the middle of June before we have a better handle on what's going to happen," he said.

Bicentennial Corrections Are Made

There was an omission and a mistake in two articles furnished this newspaper by the Berrien County Bicentennial commission.

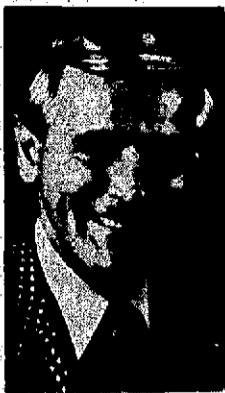

The Art Center at Market and State streets, St. Joseph, was omitted in the commission release as a location to obtain "Berrien Bicentennial," the commemorative book. The 20 other locations were listed in Tuesday's newspaper.

A rain date for the St. Joseph public schools Bicentennial spring concert, scheduled for May 21 at Dickinson stadium was incorrectly reported. The correct rain date is May 23 at 3 p.m., according to Gordon Fornesma from the school.

Easier College Loans

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Board of Education has adopted an "emergency" loan program and revised another to make it easier for college students to get money for school next fall. The board on Wednesday raised the maximum an undergraduate can borrow at one time under the Guaranteed Student Loan program from the current $1,500 to $2,500. The action also lets undergraduates borrow a total of $7,500.

At the same time, the board doubled the fee charged for those loans from one-half per cent to one per cent.

Coloma Supervisor Seat Draws Second GOP Entry

COLOMA — Harold C. Johnson, 35, has filed for election as Coloma township supervisor here on the Republican ticket.

He becomes the second Republican seeking the office, setting up a party race in the Aug. 3 primary. Ewald Eckblom, incumbent supervisor, previously announced he would seek election to the $7,500-a-year office.

Eckblom was appointed to the post in November, 1975, after the former supervisor resigned, and is seeking his first elected term. He filed his petitions for election several days after making his announcement.

The Art Center at Market and State streets, St. Joseph, was omitted in the commission release as location to obtain "Berrien Bicentennial," the commemorative book. The 20 other locations were listed in Tuesday's newspaper.

FOOD STAMP CUTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's plan to cut $1.2 billion in food stamp costs will force more than five million persons in "working poor" families out of the program, the Agriculture Department says.

Terry Davis, who runs a transportation program for some 450 handicapped students at MSU, is not handicapped but protested anyway.

"I will get old and my mobility will be limited years from now," he said. "I am working for my civil rights years in the future. Everybody here is going to get old."

Davis said a suit would be filed against MSU if the school does not buy more accessible buses by next fall. It now has one mini-bus and a van that are used solely by handicapped people, but only to get to classes.

FRANCE's overt military participation in support of the patriot cause brought more than 15,000 of her regular troops to the North American mainland. Richambien's expeditionary force, 5,270 strong, landed at Newport, R.I., in 1790, direct from France. Richambien's troops took part in a number of minor engagements in the southern New England-New York area before marching to Yorktown as part of Washington's army. The World Almanac recalls.

Years ago, the mortgage on a home was considered to be a despicall burden to be paid off as soon as possible, at any sacrifice. The reason partly stemmed from the fact that mortgages were not self-liquidating, and the viper in the black cloak could show up any day to foreclose. Now, most mortgages liquidate themselves with each payment, and ability to pay is based on income earned rather than accumulated capital.

Bargaining Amendment Has Last Chance

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A proposal to give Michigan's 58,000 state employees collective bargaining rights has struck out twice and has one more chance in the Michigan House.

The House Wednesday for the second time defeated a proposed constitutional amendment that would have allowed state employees to bargain collectively for the first time ever.

State Rep. Joseph Young, Detroit, sponsor, said he will ask the House to reconsider the vote. But that third vote is the last chance the proposal has.

As a proposed constitutional amendment, it needs two-thirds legislative approval to get on the November ballot, and then must get voter approval before becoming law.

The Senate meanwhile took no major action Wednesday. But Gov. William Milliken's budget-balancing program remained in danger as Senate Democrats again failed to muster enough support to extend the current fiscal year by three months.

The House has already twice defeated another proposed constitutional amendment that would grant collective bargaining only for State Police troopers, sergeants and their equivalents.

Most public employees of local governments like cities and townships can bargain collectively, but under the constitution, wages and working conditions for state employees are set by the Civil Service Commission.

Before the vote was taken, the debate on Young's measure turned into an argument about whether the voters should be allowed to decide the question.

Majority Floor Leader Joseph Forbes, D-Oak Park, had urged passage, saying that the wages of state employees "are down below the average for any scale in the state. What we're asking here is the right to put the question before the people."

But Rep. Dan Angel, R-Battle Creek, said, "There's been no groundswell of Civil Service employees asking for this." He said that since 1964, raises for state employees have been higher than inflation costs.

In the Senate, Democrats held a closed-door nosecount and came up with only 10 to 12 votes for the fiscal-year extension bill, party members said. Added to 10 Republican votes, that leaves the measure four to six votes short of the 26 it needs to get immediate effect so that it can become law as soon as the governor signs it.

Both chambers have already passed the measure, which budget officials say will pick up $104 million extra for this fiscal year and help avert a $280 million deficit.

Senate backers have failed twice to get the bill immediate effect. Some leaders said they may try again Thursday, but others said they won't be able to get the votes they need by then.

The House reconvenes at 2:30 p.m. Thursday, the Senate at 2 p.m.

Handicapped Riders Protest Bus Design

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — About 100 handicapped persons, many in wheelchairs or on crutches, trekked five miles down the middle of a busy street to the State Capitol on Wednesday to protest the use of federal funds for buses they cannot ride.

"I can walk 20 miles to get to a bus, but that 18-inch first step — I just can't lift my leg high enough," said Jeff Peters, the crippled Michigan State University student who organized the protest.

The protesters, who took three hours to get from the MSU campus to the Capitol, said they had to use the street because they could not mount Lansing-area buses, and could not use the sidewalks because all the curbs are not sloped.

They were protesting the current policy of the federal Urban Mass Transit Authority to make use of equipment to help the handicapped optional. The protesters want rules to make wheel chair accessibility and eight-inch steps mandatory on buses bought with federal funds.

To leave the provisions optional, the protesters argued, is a violation of federal laws that specify all public transportation must be accessible to everyone.

Resolutions were introduced in the Michigan Legislature to support the handicapped.

Very few buses in the state have the hydraulic lifts, wide doors and low steps that many handicapped and elderly people need, they said, even though the equipment is available.

Gov. William Milliken issued a statement saying the Department of state Highways and Transportation, which funnels federal money to local governments to buy buses, is committed to making public transportation usable by everyone.

Terry Davis, who runs a limited transportation program for some 450 handicapped students at MSU, is not handicapped but protested anyway.

Proposed FDA Rule Could Sweeten Cyclamate Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration is weighing a recommendation that would partially lift the government's 1960 ban on the sugar substitute cyclamate, restricting it to use as a tabletop sweetener.

Although Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt has not announced his decision, an informed industry source said it is likely to go against the artificial sweetener that became the foundation of a $1 billion-a-year business before the cyclamate cancer scare.

FDA general counsel Richard A. Merrill, in an April 20 internal memo written after a meeting with representatives of Abbott Laboratories last month, said the FDA's Bureau of Foods "was recommending that cyclamate be approved only as a tabletop sweetener."

The Merrill memo, obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, added that the commissioner "had expressed concern about several statements" in the National Cancer Institute Advisory Panel's report "relating to Down's Syndrome (mongolism) chromosomal damage and other effects attributed to or associated with cyclamate in various studies."

FDA sources said this week that the commissioner's cyclamate decision might come sometime during the latter half of May, but they cautioned against speculating that cyclamate would return to the market.

Abbott Laboratories, armed with several new animal feeding studies, petitioned the FDA in November 1973 to approve cyclamate.

Richard W. Kasperon, an Abbott vice president, said in an interview Wednesday that approval only as a tabletop sweetener "would demonstrate from a scientific standpoint that we weren't wrong in the first place in selling cyclamate."

"From a commercial standpoint, however, it would be a real disappointment," Kasperon added, referring to the big potential cyclamate market in diet beverages.

Anita Johnson, an attorney with Ralph Nader's Health Research group, said she opposed reintroduction of cyclamate in any form.

The panel said it could reach no conclusions on the potential cancer hazard if any to humans, but it expressed concern over what the scientists called "the statistically significant increase in tumors in cyclamate-treated animals from several studies."

Kissinger Outlines Plan To Aid 3rd World Growth

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The United States put forward new proposals for development aid to the Third World today and retreated from its opposition to international stockpiles of key commodities to regulate prices.

Secretary of State Henry E. Kissinger outlined the proposals to the fourth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), which opened Wednesday. He said they could help "free the world from disruptive cycles of boom and bust."

Kissinger proposed:

1. An international resources bank that would protect multinational corporations from expropriation risks while assuring underdeveloped countries a reliable flow of capital.

2. Creation of a technology corps of businessmen and university professors to help train the Third World in specific development programs.

3. Creation of energy and industrialization institutes to spread scientific information.

Kissinger also said the U.S. government is willing to negotiate the amassing of buffer stocks of raw materials to be used to shield producing nations from extreme price fluctuations. He said the funds to accomplish this could come from the resources bank he proposed, from government contributions or from export taxes.

American officials said this was a considerable advance toward meeting demands from the Third-World countries for stabilization of prices of the primary commodities they sell to the industrial nations.

In times of short supply, the reserves would be put on the world market to keep prices down. When there was a glut, surpluses would be bought for joint ventures. U.S. officials expect the Russians will be spurred to step up their own investment programs in the Third World.

materials for a system of "indexing" to offset the effects of inflation by linking the prices of the products they sell to the prices of the manufacturers they import.

The United States and other industrial nations contend such a system would result in a never-ending inflationary spiral.

The resources bank proposed by Kissinger would begin with a "guarantee fund" of $1 billion, including $200 million from the United States and substantial contributions from the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

All nations, including the Soviet Union and China, could participate, although Moscow and Peking generally shun such joint ventures. U.S. officials expect the Russians will be spurred to step up their own investment programs in the Third World.

Proposed FDA Rule Could Sweeten Cyclamate Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration is weighing a recommendation that would partially lift the government's 1968 ban on the sugar substitute cyclamate, restricting it to use as a tabletop sweetener.

Although Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt has not announced his decision, an informed industry source said it is likely to go against the artificial sweetener that became the foundation of a $1 billion-a-year business before the cyclamate cancer scare.

FDA general counsel Richard A. Merrill, in an April 20 internal memo written after a meeting with representatives of Abbott Laboratories last month, said the FDA's Bureau of Foods "was recommending that cyclamate be approved only as a tabletop sweetener."

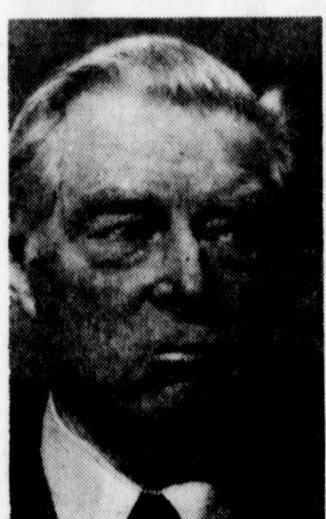

The Merrill memo, obtained under the Freedom of Information Act, added that the commissioner "had expressed concern about several statements" in the National Cancer Institute Advisory Panel's report "relating to Down's Syndrome (mongolism) chromosomal damage and other effects attributed to or associated with cyclamate in various studies."

FDA sources said this week that the commissioner's cyclamate decision might come sometime during the latter half of May, but they cautioned against speculating that cyclamate would return to the market.

Abbott Laboratories, armed with several new animal feeding studies, petitioned the FDA in November 1973 to approve cyclamate.

Richard W. Kasperson, an Abbott vice president, said in an interview Wednesday that approval only as a tabletop sweetener "would demonstrate from a scientific standpoint that we weren't wrong in the first place in selling cyclamates."

"From a commercial standpoint, however, it would be a real disappointment," Kasperson added, referring to the big potential cyclamate market in

Kissinger Outlines Plan To Aid 3rd World Growth

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The United States put forward new proposals for development aid to the Third World today and retreated from its opposition to international stockpiles of key commodities to regulate prices.

Secretary of State Henry E. Kissinger outlined the proposals to the fourth United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD), which opened Wednesday. He said they could help "free the world from disruptive cycles of boom and bust."

Kissinger proposed:

1. An international resources bank that would protect multinational corporations from expropriation risks while assuring underdeveloped countries a reliable flow of capital.
2. Creation of a technology corps of businessmen and university professors to help train the Third World in specific development programs.
3. Creation of energy and industrialization institutes to spread scientific information.

Kissinger also said the U.S. government is willing to negotiate the amassing of buffer stocks of raw materials to be used to shield producing nations from extreme price fluctuations. He said the funds to accomplish this could come from the resources bank he proposed, from government contributions or from export taxes.

American officials said this was a considerable advance toward meeting demands from the Third-World countries for stabilization of prices of the primary commodities they sell to the industrial nations.

In times of short supply, the reserves would be put on the world market to keep prices down. When there was a glut, surpluses would be bought for the stockpiles to keep prices up.

Kissinger made no mention, however, of demands from the countries exporting raw materials for a system of "indexing" to offset the effects of inflation by linking the prices of the products they sell to the prices of the manufactures they import.

The United States and other industrial nations contend such a system would result in a never-ending inflationary spiral.

The resources bank proposed by Kissinger would begin with a "guarantee fund" of $1 billion, including $200 million from the United States and substantial contributions from the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

All nations, including the Soviet Union and China, could participate, although Moscow and Peking generally shun such joint ventures. U.S. officials expect the Russians will be spurred to step up their own investment programs in the Third World.

Ford Backers Watch First Ballot Victory Fade Under Reagan Push

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key political advisers to President Ford are growing increasingly pessimistic about his chances of arriving at the GOP National Convention with enough votes for a first-ballot victory, and some are concerned he could lose his own state's primary.

After Ronald Reagan's dramatic resurgence, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Wednesday he didn't think either Ford or Reagan would reach the convention with the 1,130 votes needed for nomination.

And at a news conference on Wednesday, Ford acknowledged he is reviewing his campaign strategy, and he backed away from his earlier predictions of a first-ballot victory, saying only, "I think we'll go to Kansas City and win."

After four straight primary wins — Texas on Saturday and Indiana, Georgia, and Alabama on Tuesday — Reagan has 386 committed delegate votes to 292 committed to Ford. There are 329 uncommitted Republican delegates. There are 1,278 delegates yet to be chosen. It will take 1,130 votes for nomination at the convention in Kansas City this August.

Ford declined to predict what might happen in the remaining primaries, but he said, "We're going to win our full share."

But Dole, a former GOP national chairman, said he thinks Reagan is ahead in Nebraska, which votes next Tuesday. In non-primary states, he said he expects Reagan to do well in Wyoming and sweep Oklahoma.

Even Michigan, Ford's home state, is now regarded as questionable. Michigan law permits crossover voting, where members of one party can vote in the other party's primary. In Texas and Indiana, two other crossover states, Reagan defeated Ford with the aid of Democratic votes, many apparently from former George Wallace supporters.

Senate GOP Whip Robert F. Griffin of Michigan said he is concerned about Ford's chances in the May 18 Michigan voting, and White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, said, "I'd be kidding you if I didn't say there is a concern the President could lose Michigan."

Much of the advice being given Ford urges him to get off the defensive and spend less time responding to attacks by Reagan.

"I don't think he should be using so much of his time answering Mr. Reagan," said Griffin.

"He's made the mistake of reacting to Reagan's false issues," said Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass.

OAKLAND, Ore. (AP) — Bill Barton, who designed the original "Barbie" doll 18 years ago, says he's disappointed about the way Barbie has grown up.

"She's become a sex symbol," said Barton, who now has his own manufacturing business.

Barbie originally was "a very nicely thought-out concept for a little girl," Barton said. "A doll she could make clothes for, one with natural features and movements."

"I really have some misgivings about what's happening today," he said. "She has just gotten too sexy."

The Barbie he designed for Mattel Inc., Barton said, "is very similar in concept to the one on the market today. The face and most features are the same — except that her features have become exaggerated. The clothes have become over-sized."

And, said Barton, "they give her too big of a bosom, there, for the proportions of the doll."

Mattel could not be reached for comment.

MONTANA: Big In History, With Sky To Match

By ADDISON BRAGG
BILLINGS, Mont. (NEA) —

Hill remember the fascination of "Custer's Last Stand" from their childhood.

Designated a territory in 1864, Montana — named by an Ohio congressman — became a mecca for gold seekers.

Law and order came to the boisterous mining camps of Alder Gulch, Virginia City, Bannack and elsewhere. Bands of men whose only badge of authority was a hangman's

Copper is no longer king in Montana — and coal, mined now by easterners in the rolling plains of south central Montana, sits on an uneasy throne as it defends itself against environmentalists. The thickest, widest and most easily accessible layer of coal in the country underlies these plains.

Planners look forward to turning tiny Colstrip in Rosebud County into a model city, the capital of coal stripping country.

Butte, on the other hand, nearly a third engulfed over the last decade by the yawning Berkeley Pit, watches its people leave, its business firms close and its economy sag as the Anaconda Company prepares to abandon its western mining operations.

Modern day Montana, with its cities, its millionaires, its symphony orchestras, universities and art galleries, is still a haven for rugged individualism. Gun racks obscure rear windows of pickup trucks.

Restaurant menus warn that management "will not be responsible for any 'well done' steak order."

And people, old and young, call Montana's governor, its senators and its congressmen by their first names.

Montana also likes living in the past, however lusty or brawling it may have been. Nearly every community in the state, large or small, has its own historical society.

And, in increasing numbers, Montanans are learning to live with the continuing influx of those who come here from out of state seeking "no jobs," but simply "a place where a man can live — and breathe."

For Montana, once called "a territory of treasures," counts its people as the greatest treasure of all.

French explorers, — The Verendrye brothers, visited the region, 1742. The U.S. acquired the area, partly through the Louisiana Purchase, 1803, and partly through the explorations of Lewis and Clark, 1805-06. Fur traders and missionaries established posts in the early 19th Century. Indian uprisings hit their high-water mark in 1870 in the Battle of the Little Big Horn, in which Col. George Custer and his 264 men were wiped out. The coming of the Northern Pacific Railway, 1883, spurred farming, cattle raising and mining, and brought population growth.

Among those executed was Henry Plummer, — Virginia City's sheriff who led the "road agents" of that early time.

Statehood in 1889 brought Montana a degree of respectability but men still lived by wit and by wealth — and the power which gravitated to it.

Little is left in Butte today, however, of the tumult of a time when Marcus Daly, barely 300 troopers died in the fight — yet Americans who know nothing of Yorktown, Chickamauga and Park Chop,

French explorers, the Verendrye brothers, visited the region 1742. Fur traders and missionaries established posts in the early 19th Century. Indian uprisings hit their high-water mark in 1876 in the Battle of the Little Big Horn, in which Col. TWO SCHOOLS TEACH SKILL

Violin-Making Is Reviving In U.S.

By ERIC QUACKENBUSH

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Violin making is not a dead art, but on this side of the Atlantic it's just coming out of a generation-long coma.

And that's good news for the more than 400 members of the Violin Society of America.

Eric Chapman, a member of the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra and a founder of the society, is the organization's president.

According to Chapman, a major concern of the society and serious string instrumentalists throughout the United States is that there have been few American-born experts in the violin making field.

Yes, he admitted, the United States did recruit a fair number of European masters of the craft earlier in the century.

But many of these men and women have taken their skills to major instrument houses — manufacturers — in larger cities.

And as they made their moves to this country, many traditions died.

The most important of these,

for those concerned with violin making, was the apparent end of the family tradition where the skills were passed along from generation to generation.

The result, Chapman said, was "an end to the educational process."

Further, in this country there was little effort to fill in the gap, to provide an education here for those who might enter this demanding field.

"Most of the great schools are in Europe," Chapman said, "and the shame of this is that many of the great, old, instruments are finding their way to this country."

The gap, which Chapman describes was, he said, quite evident last year at the viola makers' competition on the Eastern Michigan University campus.

That competition, organized and directed by Chapman, was sponsored jointly by the society and the International Viola Congress.

"Of the competitors, some were over 80 and others were between the ages of 20 and 40," Chapman said. "There was no one who fell in the 40 to 60 range."

The younger set, he said, is being attracted to the field because of today's emphasis on crafts and handwork. And these young people also are finding some reason to hope for advanced training.

Since 1970, the United States has seen the development of two schools of violin making.

The only one in operation when the Society was founded in 1973 was the Peter Prier School at Salt Lake City. In January, the Kenneth Warren School started its first class in Chicago.

And next fall, officials at the University of South Carolina hope to open their own school.

"Once you get into this, the only way to truly appreciate the extensive training necessary to make an instrument is to make one," Chapman says, explaining that the specialist needs training in restoration, bow making and repair, varnishing and authentication.

"You wouldn't believe the number of good instruments that have been ruined in this country because of the incompetence of repair people."

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Louise Lasser, the dead-pan, tragicomic star of the "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" television series, faces arraignment next Wednesday on a felony charge of cocaine possession.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Marvin Kaye, in charge of the Beverly Hills office, said Wednesday the complaint was filed after laboratory analysis confirmed that a white powder allegedly found in Miss Lasser's purse was 80 milligrams of cocaine.

It Takes Love, Praise To Make An Obedient Dog

By EDITH E. SILLARS

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — They lined up around the trainer, big people with little dogs, short people with big dogs, medium-sized people with all kinds of dogs.

Some dogs become bored after completing the exercise successfully several times, a club member said.

But that is all part of being a dog's best friend.

Even the best-trained dog has a learning level no greater than a 10-year-old child.

It was Wednesday night in the gymnasium of the National Guard Armory, where the Companion Dog Training Club of Flint was holding a beginner's dog obedience class. It was the first night of the course.

At the end of 10 sessions, the half of the dog handlers who stuck it out would have canines coming when called, heeling and sitting quietly upon command, even if a stranger petted them. Their dogs would walk quietly on the left side, matching gaits with their masters.

But the beginners were in sharp contrast to the silent dogs in the advanced training session that preceded theirs.

Dogs obediently fetched small, wooden dumbbells when ordered by their masters. They hurdled the broad jump upon command. They leaped over the high jump to retrieve objects. Some even picked out the single dumbbell that held their handler's scent out of a pile of similar objects.

But sometimes, despite the spirited urging of their owners, the dogs ambled to their destination. One even yawned before retrieving the wooden object and returning it to master.

Beyond the beginner level, "it's a lot of work and time-consuming if not put to practical use," Kelly said.

"We discourage dog-guard work passionately. It takes 20 minutes to teach a dog to attack and six years to control it."

Kelly said he is bitten about once every three weeks, almost always by dogs no taller than his knee.

Problems with dogs, Kelly said, are usually problems of the owner.

"It depends on the atmosphere of the house," he said. "Dogs react exactly the same way children do. If you have a child going around smacking people, you'll have a dog that bites."

Five States Meet 1980 Safety Goals

By The Associated Press

Five states of the Union held their traffic deaths so low last year that they met their 1980 road safety goals five years ahead of schedule, the Highway Users Federation said in a recent report.

Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Utah were the only states in the country to show such progress in cutting fatality rates.

The 1975 mileage death rates (number of traffic fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles) of the five states are: Alabama, 3.8 or .1 below its 1980 goal of 3.9; Arkansas, 3.7 or the same as its goal; Mississippi 4.4 or down .1; Tennessee, 3.4 or down .3 and Utah, 3.4 or down .2.

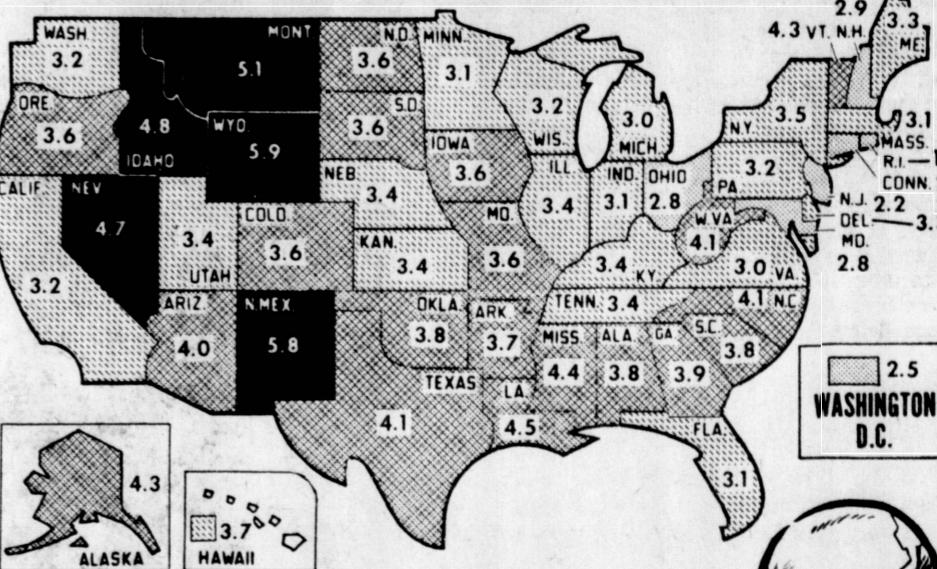

The goals were set by the Highway Users Federation, the National Safety Council and 40 other organizations in 1974 after they calculated the death toll from highway accidents for that year. It was estimated that if the nation continued at the 1972 mileage death rate of 4.5 per 100 million vehicle miles, 74,500 Americans would die on our highways and streets in 1980.

In an effort to reduce the deaths, a mileage rate of no more than 3 fatalities per 100 million vehicle miles was selected as the national average for 1980, and each state was assigned its own goal. The campaign became known as "3 by '80."

For 1975, the National Safety Council estimated that 45,800 people were killed in traffic accidents for a national mileage death rate of 3.5 or one full point below the rate for 1972. Every

Hart's 'Man Of The Year'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., has received the Man of the Year Award from the Michigan State Society. The award has been made only once before — in 1974 to then-Vice President Ford. "When you think of Senator Hart, you think of such words as gentle, kind, compassionate, integrity, intelligence, dedication, humility and, most of all, courage," said Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich. Hart is retiring from the Senate this year after spending 18 years in Congress.

Awareness Group Sets BH Meeting

A program explaining some of the tenets of the Inner Peace Movement (IPM), an international, non-profit organization that teaches greater inner awareness, will be held Tuesday at the Benton Harbor Holiday Inn.

David E. Johnston, a member of the international board of directors with the IPM, said a $1.50 donation is being asked of those who attend the program to be held at 8 p.m. He said the $1.50 will go for the cost of the Holiday Inn room.

In explaining the IPM, Johnston said, "It was founded in 1964 to help people gain greater inner awareness of themselves and to present tools and techniques to unfold their leadership abilities." The IPM has main offices at Washington, D.C.

Johnston stated that IPM is not a religious organization.

Missed Sign By Kelly Hurt No-Hit Bid

Palmer Two-Hits Sox

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

Chicago White Sox Manager Paul Richards had a little secret to tell: "If Kelly doesn't miss the take sign in the first, he probably would have pitched a no-hitter."

Richards was talking about Baltimore Oriole ace Jim Palmer, and his personal nemesis Pat Kelly, who struck a leadoff single, effectively turning Palmer's no-hitter into a one-hitter.

Palmer didn't allow another hit until Ralph Garr's two-out bloop single in the ninth and finished with his seventh career two-hitter and a 2-0 gem of a victory against the White Sox Wednesday night.

But the damage had been done in the first inning because Kelly's hitting was a lot better than his vision.

Kelly had worked the count to three balls and one strike, and Richards flashed the don't swing sign to his third base coach Jim Busby, who then relayed it to Kelly.

Something must have been lost in the translation because Kelly swung away, lacing a hard single between first and second.

"Kelly usually leads off with a single off me," Palmer said. "I felt comfortable with him on base."

Elsewhere in the American League, the Kansas City Royals downed the Boston Red Sox 8-4, the Minnesota Twins rocked the Detroit Tigers 8-2; the New York Yankees ripped the California Angels 10-4, and the Cleveland Indians beat the Oakland A's 3-1. The game between the Texas Rangers and Milwaukee Brewers was postponed by rain.

The expected pitching duel between California's Nolan Ryan and New York's Catfish Hunter fizzled, although Ryan said he had his best stuff of the season, and Hunter finished with a six-hitter.

Two-run singles by Mickey Rivers and Thurman Munson keyed a six-run eighth-inning rally that chased Ryan, 3-2.

The Red Sox, American League champions last season, are still reeling. Last in the AL East, the Red Sox lost their sixth straight game and now find themselves with a 6-11 record, six games behind the first-place Yankees.

Amos Otis found cozy Fenway Park to his liking, slugging his third homer in two games. Otis hadn't hit a homer in the Royals' previous 14 games.

Alan Ashby singled off Oakland relief ace Billie Fingers to knock in two runs in the ninth inning and snap a 1-1 tie.

Pat Dobson held the A's to seven hits and one unearned run. He walked one and struck out one.

this year.

Why?

"I figured he'd get a single with the bases loaded and a two-run homer," Twins Manager Gene Mauch said with a grin.

Ford, batting just .203 at game-time, now leads the Twins in runs-batted-in with 11. The 23-year-old rightfielder said he recently started hitting better because of visits to a hypnotist.

He said last year there were a number of stories about him going to a hypnotist but nobody asked him about it this year until Wednesday. He said he resumed his treatments last Friday and Monday.

"Concentration — that's what I'd been lacking," he said. "It (hypnosis) helps me concentrate. It gets other things out of my mind. I tried too hard the first part of the season to prove to myself and now I take things in stride."

The Twins meet again tonight, with Ray Barr, 1-1, scheduled to pitch for the Tigers against fellow right-hander Jim Hughes, 0-4.

Ford, who hit the game-winning homer over Detroit in the 10th inning Tuesday, was hitting cleanup for the first time

Roberts' pitching bubble and lead the Twins to an 8-2 baseball victory over Detroit.

Designated hitter Craig Kusick belted a three-run homer for Minnesota and Bert Blyleven continued his pitching mastery over the Tigers.

Blyleven, who hasn't lost at Tiger Stadium since June, 1972, gave up 12 hits but evened his record at 2-2 for his fifth straight victory over Detroit.

The Tigers stranded 13 runners for the second straight game as southpaw Roberts lost for the first time against three triumphs.

"I'd sure rather see 'em stranded than not on there," Detroit Manager Ralph Houk said. "If they're on there, sooner or later they'll come in."

He said the hypnotist, Harvey Meyer of Minneapolis, is a friend of his and doesn't charge Ford anything.

Streaking Dodgers Outslug Cubs

From Associated Press
It wasn't healthy to be a pitcher in Atlanta or New York Wednesday night. It's never healthy to be one in Chicago.

St. Louis' Pete Falcone had a neat three-hit shutout going in the eighth inning in Atlanta when Jerry Royster knocked him down — and out of the game — with a double off his knee cap. It didn't hurt much — and neither did the performances of relievers Mike Proly and Al Hrabosky, who kept the Braves hitless and preserved the Cardinals' 4-0 victory.

New York's Jon Matlack was working on an equally neat six-hit shutout against Cincinnati in the 10th inning, when cramps in the fingers of his left hand — his pitching hand — forced him out of action. Ken Sanders took over and got the final out of the inning.

But in the 11th, the pain set in. Tom Hall couldn't do anything right. In one-third of an inning, he gave up two hits, two walks and the two runs that gave the Reds a 2-0 victory over the Mets.

In Chicago, the wind was blowing, namely blowing up the pitchers' earned-run averages by blowing baseballs out of Wrigley field at an alarming rate.

Los Angeles ripped a club-record seven home runs, two by Henry Cruz, in their 16-hit attack and the Cubs got 21 hits, including a pair of three-run homers from Rick Monday. The Dodgers' power prevailed for a 14-12 victory that extended their winning streak to 11 games.

In the rest of the National League, Philadelphia beat Houston 6-3, San Diego defeated Montreal 6-4 and Pittsburgh down San Francisco 6-1.

George Foster's tie-breaking single and an RBI hit by Ken Griffey ended the goose-egg marathon between the Reds and Mets. Joe Morgan opened the 11th with a walk off Hall and stole second. After Perez drew a one-out walk, Foster grounded his single to left.

The Dodgers scored runs in every inning but the ninth as Don Sutton, 3-3, picked up the victory.

The Dodgers, aided by a 31-mile-an-hour wind, also got home runs from Bill Buckner, his second of the season; Ron Cey, his fourth; Steve Yeager, his third; Bill Russell, his first, and Ed Goodson, his first. Cruz' two homers gave him four for the season.

The Cubs scored in six of the nine innings, breaking a modern major league record for the most innings in which runs were scored by both teams.

The Cubs also displayed power of their own, with two home runs by Rick Monday, giving him seven for the year, and three doubles by Bill Madlock.

With the Dodgers leading 8-7, pinch-hitter Goodson broke open the game with a three-run homer in the seventh. Los Angeles picked up two more runs in the eighth and the Cubs added another in their half of the inning, making it 14-8 going into the ninth.

The Cubs then picked up four more runs in the inning before reliever Mike Marshall retired the side for his fifth save of the season.

Bobby Tolan's grand-slam homer in the sixth wiped out Houston's 3-0 lead, then pinch-hitter Ollie Brown chipped in with a two-run homer later in the inning to wrap up Philadelphia's victory.

Doug Rader's three-run homer in a four-run sixth inning catapulted the Padres past Montreal. With two out in the sixth and San Diego trailing 3-2, Tito Fuentes doubled, Willie Davis to tie it, Willie McCovey also singled, then Rader hit his third homer of the season.

Al Oliver and Duffy Dyer had two-run homers in support of Bruce Kison's five-hit pitching that enabled the Pirates to beat San Francisco. Kison's double, an RBI single by Richie Hebner and Oliver's homer gave Pittsburgh three runs. In the third and Dyer hit his an inning later after Richie Zisk doubled.

Dorothy Logan added a single and double for Harbor, now 3-4. Connie Riley had two hits and Diana Sherman four RBI's for South Haven.

NY Nets' Erving One-Man Offense Against Nuggets

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) —

The New York Nets have been basically operating as a one-man offense — Julius "Dr. J." Erving — in their American Basketball Association championship series against the Denver Nuggets.

The Nuggets, on the other hand, have been cutting up their scoring more evenly.

The results? One success for each team.

South Haven Nips Harbor

SOUTH HAVEN — Sherry Finley slugged two doubles and a homer but it wasn't enough as Benton Harbor lost to South Haven 12-11 in girls' softball here Wednesday.

Dorothy Logan added a single and double for Harbor, now 3-4. Connie Riley had two hits and Diana Sherman four RBI's for South Haven.

Bowling Banquet Slated May 16

The Blossomland Men's Association annual banquet and meeting will be held Sunday, May 16, starting at 11:30 a.m. at Blossom Lanes.

Tickets are priced at $6, which includes bowling and a meal. Tickets can be purchased by calling Ernie Thompson at 925-0262. Also all league secretaries should return their banquet tickets if they are or are not attending the meeting.

Beavers Take Win

CONSTANTINE — Wayne Urbilash took three hits and Brian Rafter took the mound win as the Eau Claire junior varsity defeated Constantine 5-3 here Wednesday.

In addition to using Jones and Beck on the irrepressible Erving, Denver Coach Larry Brown has told one of his guards to help out on defense against the Nets' dominating forward.

Denver's guard situation, however, is not good.

Only veteran Ralph Simpson, the Nuggets' high scorer in Game Two with 25 points, has been consistent. Chuck Williams, the other backcourt starter, suffered a calf injury in the first game and was limited to 18 minutes of playing time in the second game. Claude Terry was knocked to the floor during a fourth-period collision in Game Two and hit his head. Ronnie Monte Towe has a broken wrist, and Jimmy Foster has little experience.

However, the front line of forwards David Thompson and Jones and center Dan Issel has produced. Each scored 24 points in the Nuggets' victory.

Webster Ignites Upset Of Aeros

HOUSTON (AP) — The World Hockey Association playoff game between Houston and New England Wednesday night might have been a dull party had it not been for right winger Tom Webster of the Whalers.

After a scoreless first period, Webster stepped out boldly with two goals that ignited the underdog Whalers to a 4-2 victory in the first game of their best-of-seven semifinal playoff series.

By the time Webster scored his third goal in the final period he was the life of the party.

The Whalers, who entered the playoffs with the worst regular season record of any playoff team, already have scored a big victory.

They have put the defending WHA champions down one game on their home ice with Webster.

While Webster was having his troubles in goal, Whalers rookie goalie Cap Rader was having another outstanding performance. With two New England goalies injured, Whalers Coach Harry Neale had little choice but to go with Rader.

Vikings Lose Gilliam To Atlanta Falcons

ATLANTA (AP) — John Gilliam said he always wanted to be an Atlanta Falcon, and he's finally getting his wish — after nine National Football League seasons.

The Falcons announced the signing Wednesday of the nine-year veteran wide receiver, who played out his option with the Minnesota Vikings last season and became a free agent May 1.

Gilliam refused to discuss financial terms or say if he received a three-year contract.

"This is not a money thing," Gilliam said at a news conference in the Falcons' offices at Atlanta Stadium.

"I've got other interests here. I have always wanted to play in Atlanta. Had we not gotten together I would have gone back to Minnesota," the 6-foot-1, 185-pounder said.

Gilliam became the third free agent to sign since the players association and league owners agreed to rescind the Rozelle Rule which required a club which signed a free agent to compensate the player's former club.

Calvin Hill, who played out his option with Dallas, signed recently with Washington, and Duane Thomas signed with Dallas after playing out his option with the Redskins.

Gilliam reportedly received $75,000 last year with the Vikings.

Harbor Holds On To Edge Hackett

Benton Harbor scored six runs in the first three innings but then had to hold on to down pesky Kalamazoo Hackett 6-5 at home Wednesday afternoon in a non-league baseball game.

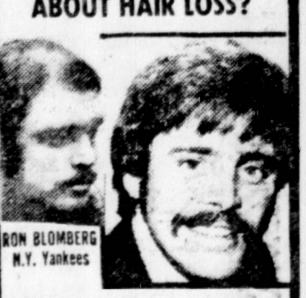

The Tigers went out to a 4-1 lead after the first inning. In the first inning, Napoleon Lark doubled in a run, winning pitcher Dave Williams sacrificed in one. Jerry McClinton took on a wild pitch and Willy Fryer walked to force the fourth run in.

McClinton then singled a run home in the second frame and Lark doubled home the Tigers' last run in the third.

Hackett made the contest close by notching single runs in the fifth and sixth and then the Irish added two more in the seventh.

Williams is now 1-1 on the year while Bailes took the loss for Hackett. Benton Harbor is now 2-7 on the season.

Flyers Seek Clinching Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Flyers are poised to deliver the coup de grace to the Boston Bruins when their National Hockey League semifinals resume here tonight.

The Flyers, in high gear now in their drive for their third successive Stanley Cup championship, have won three straight from the Bruins to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Boston Coach Don Cherry is trying to get his club back to basics in the wake of Tuesday's 5-2 Flyers victory, their second straight victory in Boston and only the fourth over the Bruins since the Flyers entered the NHL in 1967.

"Our system broke down," said Cherry. "It was good enough during the regular season. Why we have to get away from it in important games like these, I'll never know."

But if Cherry didn't know, some of the Flyers had a good idea. They attributed the wins to Philadelphia's swarming, tight-checking defense.

"It's very noticeable that their defensemen tire at the end," said Flyers defenseman Tom Bladon. "We have towards digging at them all the time and even our defensemen take a shot at keeping them on the run."

Both games in Boston were tied going into the last period, but the well-conditioned Flyers pulled away in the final 20 minutes.

The Flyers' star wing, Reggie Leach, who has tied an NHL record by scoring a goal in each of the last eight playoff games, agreed with Bladon. "I think they probably will not play again."

But Ratelle disagreed, saying, "We can wait and see."

Canadiens Hope To Clinch Series Behind Fast Start

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens were notoriously slow starters during the regular National Hockey League season, and the habit has carried over to the Stanley Cup playoffs.

MAN BEHIND MASK: Philadelphia Flyers goalie Wayne Stephenson doffs his mask during practice session in Philadelphia Wednesday. Wings Get Clean Bills Of Health

DETROIT (AP) — Red Wings Coach and General Manager Alex Delvecchio says two of Detroit's top players have received clean bills of health for next season.

Bergeron broke a Red Wing record for goals scored by a rookie, scoring 32 times before being injured.

Delvecchio says Mickey Redmond has been given an OK on his back. Redmond missed most of last season complaining about back problems. He underwent physical therapy in Toronto for the problem.

"Mickey will have spot checks on his back the rest of the summer, but everything looks fine," Delvecchio says. "That was a big concern of ours. It's good news."

Delvecchio also says Walt McKechnie, last season's team scoring leader, has signed a multiyear contract for an undisclosed amount. McKechnie had 26 goals and 50 assists for a career high of 82 points.

The Red Wings are still without a new coach for next season, and Delvecchio says he won't make a decision until sometime after the league meetings in June.

Milton Triumphs

PORTEGE — Milton Junior High nipped Portage West 4-3 in a tennis match here Wednesday afternoon for its fifth straight win this year.

Milton's singles winners were Tim Sizer and Chad McLeland. The two doubles teams that won were Eric Smith-Kevin Geronde and Janene Bock-Paul Stafford.

Up until Tuesday night, the Canadiens had not had to pay a stiff price for their bad habit, but their 5-2 loss to New York Islanders in the fourth game of their semifinal may shorten them up.

The best-of-seven series resumes tonight at the Forum with the Canadiens holding a 3-1 lead. The Montreal players hope to get off to a better start than they did Tuesday and wrap up the series with a victory.

"I think we will try for a little more consistency, to get off to a little quicker start," said goaltender Ken Dryden. "We seemed to have had a slow 10 minutes or so in most every game. In fact, that was one of our problems throughout the year."

The Canadiens fell behind 2-0 in the first period Tuesday night and trailed 4-0 after the second period as the Islanders fought to avoid an early summer vacation.

"They are very good, hard-working, disciplined hockey club," Dryden said. "You very, very rarely get anything given to you by the Islanders. You have to work very hard for what you get. That is the mark of a very good hockey team."

"I expect they won't be giving us anything Thursday. We are going to have to work for everything we get."

The series still stands three games to one. The Islanders have to win three more games and we have to win one. That's the kind of approach we should take from here."

Montreal Bracing For Pickpockets

MONTREAL (AP) — Thousands of visitors pouring into the city for this summer's Olympic Games will provide some of the world's top professional pickpockets with an ample opportunity to practice their trade.

City police, cooperating with immigration officials and police forces around the world, are bracing for an expected influx of pickpockets from many countries.

"Based on past experiences at the Munich Games and Expo 70, we will have a big problem on our hands this summer," said Sgt. Del Pierre Forges of the Montreal Urban Community (MUC) police. "In 1972, the German police weren't expecting anything and the pickpockets had a field day."

In an effort to avoid a repeat performance, about 100 police have completed a special training course and are checking out the city subway system and other areas where a high incidence of pickpocketing is expected, he said.

The Games will present police with a particularly tough problem because visits here by strangers will be compressed into the period of a month.

Police know of a worldwide association of pickpockets, called ParaColon, which provides members a variety of services, including money for legal fees when they are arrested.

Police also believe ParaColon controls the movements of its members and will designate Montreal as this summer's key target area.

"This is the only organization we have definite knowledge about," Forges said. "But there are rumors of many more, and we expect pickpockets from a large number of countries to show up in Montreal for the Games."

He said: MUC police are making use of an international police intelligence network to try to track down pickpockets.

They have compiled a file of photographs and information on about 1,000 of the world's best-known professionals after consulting "every major police force in the world — Interpol, Scotland Yard, and many others," he said.

The files are being distributed to immigration authorities, who will attempt to control the entry of pickpockets at airports, bus terminals and railway stations, he said.

A report given to MUC police said professional pickpockets usually work in groups of three, made up of the "whiz," who relieves the "sucker" of his money; the "stall," who puts the unsuspecting victim off his guard, and the "getaway."

The specially-trained MUC anti-pickpocket officers will form about 33三人組 groups in order to mirror the techniques of their criminal adversaries, Forges said.

"It may sound funny at first, but the first thing we tell the men is that they must learn to think like pickpockets in order to catch them," he said. "Many are highly skilled professionals."

The best protection for tourists is to carry credit cards and traveler's checks because the real professionals only handle hard cash, he said.

Wings Get Clean Bills Of Health

DETROIT (AP) — Red Wings Coach and General Manager Alex Delvecchio says two of Detroit's top players have received clean bills of health for next season.

Bergeron broke a Red Wing record for goals scored by a rookie, scoring 32 times before being injured.

Delvecchio says Mickey Redmond has been given an OK on his back. Redmond missed most of last season complaining about back problems. He underwent physical therapy in Toronto for the problem.

"Mickey will have spot checks on his back the rest of the summer, but everything looks fine," Delvecchio says. "That was a big concern of ours. It's good news."

Delvecchio also says Walt McKechnie, last season's team scoring leader, has signed a multiyear contract for an undisclosed amount. McKechnie had 26 goals and 56 assists for a career high of 82 points.

The Red Wings are still without a new coach for next season, and Delvecchio says he won't make a decision until sometime after the league meetings in June.

Coliseum Offers Luxury Suites

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Reservations will be accepted starting May 5 for 138 luxury suites on the rim of the Los Angeles Coliseum, officials say.

The Coliseum commission decided Wednesday on a financing plan to refurbish the 53-year-old structure. The cost of one of the suites will be a $125,000 bond and a five-year lease at $20,000 a year.

Rental of the suites is to provide funds to finance over-all improvements to the Coliseum at no cost to taxpayers, according to Commission President Pete Schabarum, a county supervisor.

Montreal Bracing For Pickpockets

MONTREAL (AP) — Thousands of visitors pouring into the city for this summer's Olympic Games will provide some of the world's top professional pickpockets with an ample opportunity to practice their trade.

City police, cooperating with immigration officials and police forces around the world, are bracing for an expected influx of pickpockets from many countries.

"Based on past experiences at the Munich Games and Expo 67, we will have a big problem on our hands this summer," said Sgt.-Det. Pierre Forges of the Montreal Urban Community (MUC) police. "In 1972, the German police weren't expecting anything and the pickpockets had a field day."

In an effort to avoid a repeat performance, about 100 police with a particularly tough training course and are checking out the city subway system and other areas where a high incidence of pickpocketing is expected, he said.

The Games will present police with a particularly tough problem because visits here by an estimated two million strangers will be compressed into the period of a month.

Police know of a worldwide association of pickpockets, called ParaColon, which provides members a variety of services, including money for legal fees when they are arrested.

Leading WHA Award Winners Announced

TORONTO (AP) — Marc Tardif of the Quebec Nordiques, Mark Napier and Vaclav Nedomansky of the Toronto Toros, Paul Shmyr of the Cleveland Crusaders and Michel Dion of Indianapolis won the top World Hockey Association awards announced this week.

Tardif, the Nordiques' all-star

Napier, a 19-year-old right wing, captured rookie of the year honors. Napier scored 43 goals and 93 points to finish among the top scorers in the WHA.

Named the best defenseman was Shmyr, captain of the Crusaders and a WHA all-star.

Nedomansky was voted the most gentlemanly player. The Toros center scored 98 points, including 56 goals, in 81 games and had only eight minutes — four minors — in penalties.

The best goaltending award, which is a team award, went to Dion, a rookie netminder.

All five were winners for the first time.

Tardif beat out Bobby Hull of the Winnipeg Jets for the W.D. (Bill) Hunter Trophy. Hull scored 53 goals and 70 assists for 123 points.

Napier's chief competition came from Dion and Cincinnati left wing Claude Larose.

Shmyr broke the stranglehold Quebec's J.C. Tremblay and Indianapolis' Pat Stapleton had on the best defenseman award. Tremblay, who won the honors in 1972-73 and last season, finished second in the voting. Stapleton, who was the winner two years ago, finished third.

Nedomansky, who will receive the Paul Deneau Trophy, beat out Dave Keon of Indianapolis and Huss for the most gentlemanly player award.

The Ben Hatskin Trophy for the best goaltender, a team award, was closely contested between Indianapolis, Winnipeg and Houston. The trophy is awarded to the team that has allowed the fewest number of goals during the regular season.

Indianapolis gave up 247 goals.

Yarborough Sets Pace In NASCAR

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A second place finish by Cale Yarborough in the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing event at Talladega, Ala., has enabled him to win Grand National first-leg point honors.

Yarborough, like Parsons a Chevrolet driver, finished second to Ford driver Buddy Baker, to put him 48 points ahead of Parsons in the point standings and earn him $10,000.

Yarborough has 1,555 points to Parsons' 1,486, Richard Petty's 1,398, Bobby Allison's 1,331, Dave Marcis' 1,291, Lenny Pond's 1,291, Richard Childress' 1,270, Darrell Waltrip's 1,179, Cecil Gordon's 1,155 and J.D. McDuffie's 1,115.

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The 80,000 seat Pontiac Metropolitan Stadium will be the site of annual North-South Shrine Game next Dec. 17, local Shrine officials said Monday.

The game will be the first college all-star football game played in Michigan. The covered stadium is home of the Detroit Lions of the National Football League. Local shrine spokesmen predicted the game, certified by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, will be a sellout.

The annual contest is sponsored by the Shriners and proceeds go to more than 20 hospitals which provide care for crippled and burned children.

Ali And Ex-Politician Team Up For Fast Food Shuffle

CAPE MAY, N.J. (AP) — Former President Nixon supporter and Vietnam war hawk Charles W. Sandman and former conscientious objector Muhammad Ali have found something in common: hamburgers.

Sandman, a former Republican congressman who became famous during his defense of Nixon in the House Judiciary Committee, has teamed up with Ali in the fast food business.

"Ideology has nothing to do with it; we're going to make money," Sandman said this week.

The ex-politician and the boxer have formed an alliance to create Muhammed Ali restaurants, which will offer three sizes of hamburgers, fried chicken and fish and will be located in black neighborhoods in large cities.

"We met last year and hit it off real well," Sandman said in a telephone interview. "Ali is interested in investments that will support him when he leaves the ring."

"Actually, we're very similar in a lot of ways: We both believe in the free enterprise system."

Sandman was a congressman with little national reputation until 1974 when he became former President Nixon's most vocal supporter during the televised House Judiciary Committee impeachment proceedings. He was defeated when he ran for re-election in his southern New Jersey district.

Small Deficit For Quebec

QUEBEC (AP) — If the Quebec Nordiques had not been eliminated so quickly from the World Hockey Association's playoffs, they might have been able to avoid an operating deficit for the first time in their history.

"It won't be a big loss though," said team president John Dacres, indicating that the loss could be around $100,000. "The next auditing of the books will give the exact figures."

The Nordiques, who were eliminated in a five-game Canadian Division semifinal by the Calgary Cowboys, lost a total of $1.2 million in their first three years of operation.

Sandman said he always wanted to get into the fast food business but was too busy holding public office. He once owned a restaurant franchise, but gave it up before he went to Congress in 1967.

"People don't know that Ali is a real bug on cleanliness, and that's what we're going to run: a clean, first class operation," Sandman said.

Sandman, who will be president of the company that operates the chain, refused to disclose how much will be paid to Ali for the use of his name.

"That's nobody's business but our own and I'm not going to answer the question," Sandman said. "One of the nice things about not being in politics is that when you don't want to answer something you can tell people to go to hell."

Fiscal Crisis Curbs Big NYC University

By MALCOLM N. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's widely acclaimed university, with an enrollment bigger than the population of Des Moines, Iowa, is struggling to survive a financial crisis with its quality and benevolent reputation intact.

DR. ROBERT KIBBEE

Everything about the City University of New York or CUNY, with an enrollment of 270,000, is down — its morale, its size, its budget and its admissions applications.

CUNY's proud policy of open admissions — a guarantee of a college for any graduate of a city high school — is gone and the long-revered free tuition available to any city resident is in danger.

"The kids who go here have to have degrees that are still worthwhile," a CUNY spokesman says.

Its graduates, who are represented on the faculties of many of the world's most distinguished universities, include some of the richest, the most famous and the most successful individuals living today. Among them are Mayor Abraham D. Beame; Dr. Jonas Salk, who helped wipe out polio; composer Ira Gershwin; novelist Bernard Malamud; Nobel Laureate Robert Hofstadter, and entertainer Zero Mostel.

For the qualified, a free education there has always been a right of living in New York City. Even academic competence was no requisite for admission in recent years, under an open enrollment program that has now been altered by the city's, and thus the university's, fiscal crisis.

New admissions criteria require an 80 per cent high school average or a ranking in the upper third of a student's class for admission to the senior colleges. A 70 average and rank in the upper three-fourths are now needed for acceptance in a community college.

Admissions data at CUNY shows that this change in policy will be partially responsible for a freshman class next fall that will be about 40 per cent smaller than the one which entered last September.

Instead of automatic admission to college, as under open enrollment, students who are unqualified under the new system must first enter a remedial program with CUNY.

"It's a hell of an experience," says Chancellor Robert J. Kibbee. "It's more fun to build institutions than to tear them down, although it takes a good deal more care and thought, I guess, as you decelerate than as you accelerate."

As chancellor, Kibbee has persuaded the Board of Higher Education — in effect, CUNY's trustees — to merge, close and limit some of the university's schools, precipitating student demonstrations and the wrath of some communities which claim racial discrimination.

Before the faculty tentatively agreed on a new contract forgoing salary increases until 1978 and deferring two weeks' pay, he had also been forced, barring a last-minute transfusion from the legislature, to schedule his staff and faculty for a four-week payless furlough at a saving of $32 million. The new contract saves $14.7 million.

And Kibbee has had to deal with the politically and racially explosive issue of ending free tuition in a city whose mayor got where he is because of CUNY's free tuition.

"The future of City University is reduced scope," Irving Polishook, president of the faculty union, said. "My hope is that reduced scope will not be irretrievable." Now engaged in negotiating this year's and next year's faculty contract, he adds:

"The imposition of tuition would be irretrievable. That would change the nature of the university ... It would no longer be a university of opportunity for the people of the City of New York. It would be a university for the people who could afford to pay."

Mayor Beame has steadfastly opposed imposing tuition, preferring instead to recommend that the state, which has its own university system with mandatory tuition, spend more for CUNY, assuming the costs of its senior colleges by 1978.

Kibbee, saying he would "do almost anything" if "it gets down to saving the university," refuses to impose tuition without a commitment from the state and the city to fund CUNY at acceptable levels, no matter how much tuition is raised.

Tuition, he says, is the price of getting enough money to maintain the university's quality. But no one who counts has been willing so far to demand that price, which carries with it a political surtax of certain public outrage.

Upstate legislators, whose constituents pay tuition at the State University, urge it. Local legislators shun it, and Gov. Hugh L. Carey says it is an option to be studied.

The result is that Kibbee and his university are in the middle — between the hurricane of imposing tuition and the earthquake of overspending its budget.

The chancellor and Board Chairman Alfred A. Giardino say the university is working in the dark, with no guidance from the city and state as to how much money to expect from them.

"Everyone is playing chicken in the sense that they want everyone else to do something first," Kibbee says. "The history of last year has been a history of moving targets. From one week to the next, the university would not know what its budget was."

Volunteers Planting Forest

Midland Looks To Tricentennial

By EDWARD C. HUTCHINSON

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Had Leo D. Ballard obeyed his wife 14 months ago, this city would be without a forest 100 years from now.

One cold, February night, Ballard sat up in his bed and announced to his sleepy wife, Betty, that the community should plant a forest as its share of the Bicentennial celebration.

"She told me to be quiet and go back to sleep," Ballard recalled.

He did neither, and because of it this community is preparing for the nation's Tricentennial with an ambitious tree planting project under way.

When the last hole is dug and the final seedling is slipped in the earth, the Bicentennial Commemorative Forest will be done. All it will have to do is grow, and that's a biological function no one will tamper with.

The forest is being planted on about 24 acres of Dow-owned land on Pine River Road. The Chippewa River flows about 700 feet to the north, and the Chippewa Nature Center abuts the west end of the forest.

Cost of the trees and planting supplies is about $4,000, which Dow has volunteered to pay, Ballard said.

Ballard

works for the Michigan division of Dow Chemical U.S.A. and is credited with the idea and original push which led to the forest.

And now, halfway through the planting of 35,000 seedlings, he admits he mothered the project, but adds:

"There were 3,000 midwives."

About 3,000 youngsters, mostly from 89 elementary school grades in the Midland Public Schools are planting. Sponsors are the Midland Beautification Committee and the Chippewa Nature Center. They have worked with Dow and the county's Bicentennial Committee in fleshing out Ballard's dream.

'QUEEN OF SUMMER SKIES'

Vega Dominant May Star

ANN ARBOR — The "Queen of the Summer Skies" will dominate the nights of May, according to University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

"The dazzling, bluish star Vega, the third brightest visible from this latitude, has been called both the 'Arc Light of the Sky' and the 'Queen of Summer Skies,'" says Prof. Losh. "It rises in the far northeast around sunset at part of the constellation Lyra."

"Lyra consists of an equilateral triangle and parallelogram with Vega at the apex of the triangle," the observer adds. "Vega is also noteworthy because the solar system is thought to be heading in its general direction at a speed of 12 miles per second.

"Aside from being the goal of our solar system, Vega has the distinction of being the first star to have its picture taken, July 17, 1890," she comments.

Lyra also contains the noted quadruple star Epsilon and the famous Ring Nebula, both best viewed through a small telescope.

Rising in the southeast a little later than Lyra is the constellation Scorpius, which curves up to the left like a giant fish hook.

"Scorpius is an outstanding summer constellation," Prof.

Losh says. "In the heart of this 'scorpion' is the star Antares, which means 'rival of Mars,' a reference to its reddish color."

Planets of the month include

Mars found west of the meridian at sunset.

The fifth of May will present some striking scenes, with Mars just five degrees south of the bright star Pollux and seven degrees north of the waxing crescent moon. Saturn will also be just three degrees east of the moon," she says.

On May 12, she continues,

Mars will pass Saturn by about one degree, making a double-planet display.

By the end of the month the length of day will have increased by about an hour, with only 15 minutes to go until the longest day, which occurs in June.

May Is A Big Month For Festivals In Michigan

The flowers that bloom in the spring and the mushrooms that quickly spring from the earth give good cause for celebration and that's the way it is during the month of May in Michigan.

Festivals in tribute to the tasty morel mushrooms will be held throughout Michigan's north country, leading off with the National Mushroom Festival at Boyne City, May 8-9. At Mesick, the mushroom festival is scheduled beginning May 8 and continuing through the 14th. Other mushroom festivals will be held at Harrison, May 14-16 and at Lewiston May 18-19.

The blooming of the fruit trees will draw thousands of visitors to Michigan's southwest area at the twin cities of St. Joseph-Benton Harbor stage the traditional Blossomtime Festival May 2-8. Parades, contests and religious events highlight the commemoration.

Tulip-lined streets will welcome visitors to Holland May 12-15, when that predominantly Dutch community celebrates the annual Tulip Time Festival. Steeped in its European heritage, the festival will feature costumed dancers who will scrub the city's downtown streets — the way it once was done in the Netherlands.

The tossing of the caber, sword dancing and the swirl of the bagpipes will mark Scottish games competition during the Highland Festival and Games at Alma, May 22-23. Featured will be bagpipe units from throughout the United States and Canada competing for first place honors. There will be individual competition for pipers, drummers, dancers and in the test-of-strength games.

Michigan's part in the Bicentennial celebration will be observed May 17 at Bronson with ceremonies acknowledging this state's participation in the Bicentennial Wagon Train. Also with Bicentennial theme will be the annual staging of the Port Michilimackinac Pageant over the Memorial Day weekend at Mackinaw City. Performances will be presented May 28-31.

Additional listings and more information on Michigan Bicentennial events as well as other events and festivals scheduled throughout the state are contained in the April-September edition of the Michigan Calendar of Travel Events.

The calendar is available free of charge by writing the Travel Bureau, Michigan Department of Commerce, 300 S. Capitol Avenue, Lansing 48913 or by phoning Toll-Free 1-800-292-4220 from anywhere in Michigan. Out of state residents may also phone Toll-Free 1-800-248-5466.

'QUEEN OF SUMMER SKIES'

Vega Dominant May Star

ANN ARBOR — The "Queen of the Summer Skies" will dominate the nights of May, according to University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

"The dazzling bluish star Vega, the third brightest visible from this latitude, has been called both the 'Arc Light of the Sky' and the 'Queen of Summer Skies,'" says Prof. Losh. "It rises in the far northeast around sunset at part of the constellation Lyra."

Lyra consists of an equilateral triangle and parallelogram with Vega at the apex of the triangle, she observes, adding that Vega is also noteworthy because the solar system is thought to be heading in its general direction at a speed of 12 miles per second.

"Aside from being the goal of our solar system, Vega has the distinction of being the first star to have its picture taken, July 17, 1850," she comments.

Lyra also contains the noted quadrupole star Epsilon and the famous Ring Nebula, both best viewed through a small telescope.

Rising in the southeast a little later than Lyra is the constellation Scorpius, which curves up to the left like a giant fish hook.

"Scorpius is an outstanding summer constellation," Prof.

On May 12, she continues, Mars will pass Saturn by about one degree, making a double-planet display.

By the end of the month the

Prices Expected To Rise Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices are likely to start picking up now that the economy is advancing at a steady pace. The Labor Department releases its April wholesale price report today, and it is expected to reflect some recently announced price hikes.

Welfare Overhaul Is Urged

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A sweeping overhaul of state and federal welfare programs was recommended Wednesday by the Michigan League for Human Services, a research agency funded by the United Way.

A league report specifically recommends that the aid to families with dependent children program (ADC) be based on financial need rather than on "deprivation." Deprivation is defined as continued absence from home, the league said.

The procedures for qualifying under "deprivation" encourage families to break up to qualify for payments, a league spokesman said.

The report also makes a number of recommendations for the federal food stamp program, including a bid that the program provide nutritionally sound diets.

The current food stamp program, a league spokesman said, is administered on the estimated needs of an average family. But the program does not take into account the extra nutritional needs of pregnant women or workers with strenuous jobs.

Religion Goes Beyond Pulpit, Says Lawmaker

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer

"To be meaningful, religion must not just be preached from the pulpit, but must be lived out in the marketplace," Rep. Walter Fauntroy said last night during Benton Harbor week activities honoring area clergymen. Cass Gun Conviction Reversed By Court

A Cassopolis man's 1973 conviction on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon has been overturned by the state court of appeals because a policeman testified during the man's trial that he heard gunshots 20 minutes before the man was arrested.

In its decision released this week, the court ruled the policeman's testimony was immaterial to the charge and that it prejudiced the jury against the defendant, Richard L. Hicks. The case was remanded back to Cass Circuit court.

William Grimmer, an assistant Cass prosecutor, said that because of the ruling, a new trial on the same charge was to be scheduled. Hicks, 21, was convicted on the concealed weapon charge in a January, 1976, jury trial before Judge James Hoff.

The charge stemmed from his arrest Aug. 16, 1974, during which police seized a sawed-off 20-gauge shotgun and a .22-caliber pistol from three men in a car which had been stopped for speeding about 4 a.m.

Hicks, tried only in connection with the shotgun, was sentenced to two years probation and ordered to pay a fine and cost of $900.

During Hicks' trial, an Ontwa township police officer, James Kidwell, testified he was awakened at his house about 4 a.m. by gunshots and gave chase to a car which sped away. Kidwell testified that 20 minutes later he encountered another officer who had chased a car which Hicks had been driving. Both officers testified they found the weapons in the car. Kidwell was not able to identify the car he chased and was not able to say if Hicks had been in the car, according to Grimmer.

The appeals court held that Kidwell's testimony concerning the gunshots and the car he chased was not material to the concealed weapons charge and

Failure Reported In Bomber Part

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has reported a failure in a major part designed for the B1 bomber, which is already under heavy criticism primarily because of its high cost.

The Air Force informed Congress Wednesday of a small crack in a test model of a tail section. A spokesman said it is the first failure in a major part for the bomber.

was so prejudicial that it denied Hicks a fair trial.

Grimmer said the testimony was called for to explain why Kidwell appeared at the arrest scene at 4 a.m. in his bare feet.

One of the other men in the car, Dennis Fuson, was sentenced to two to five years in the state prison at Jackson after being convicted of carrying a concealed weapon, and the third man, Michael Robinson, never appeared for trial and is still being sought, Grimmer said.

Six Fathers Are $27,000 In Arrears For 16 Children

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON

Staff Writer

Six fathers owing nearly $27,000 in back child support were sentenced this week in Berrien Circuit court, including one who got four months in jail for making only one payment in three years.

Edward Pastrick, special investigator for the Berrien friend of the court's office, reported:

Judge William S. White sentenced Orls Robinson, of 123 Plum court, Benton Harbor, to four months in the county jail for $3,972 arrears for five children on ADC. Robinson was also told to find work within 90 days of his release from jail or he'll spend another 90 days in jail.

He was also placed on two years probation after being held in contempt of court, and ordered to sign a wage assignment of $20 weekly support plus $10 weekly on the arrearage if he finds work.

Judge Julian E. Hughes sentenced Evans Lee Allison, of 864 Columbus avenue, Benton Harbor, to concurrent 30-day jail terms after holding him in contempt for $1,844 arrears for one ADC child in one case, and $1,351 arrears for another child in ADC.

He was also placed on two years probation and given 90 days from his release to find work or spend another 90 days in jail. Pastrick said Allison has not made any support payments since

In other sentences by White:

Richard J. Wiggins, of South Bend, drew 10 days in jail after being held in contempt and placed on one-year probation for $372 arrears for one child not on ADC. He was ordered to pay $17.50 weekly support and $2.50 weekly towards the arrearage.

R.J. Puchinski, of 1786 Territorial road, Benton township, was placed on two years probation after being held in contempt for $9,357 arrears for two children not on ADC. He was ordered to pay $48 weekly support and $10 weekly towards the larger arrearage, and $7.50 support and $2.50 towards the smaller arrearage each week.

Kenneth L. Roberts, of 2750 Paul street, Niles, was held in contempt and placed on two years probation for $4,014 arrears for one child on ADC, and ordered to find work in 30 days or spend 30 days in jail. He was also told to pay $15 support and $15 on the arrearage weekly if he finds work. Pastrick said Roberts has made 18 payments in the last two years.

Alvin Smith, of 777 East Napier avenue, Benton township, was placed on two years probation after being held in contempt of court for $5,213 arrears for four children on ADC in one case, and $547 arrears for another ADC child. He was ordered to pay $48 weekly support and $10 weekly towards the larger arrearage, and $7.50 support and $2.50 towards the smaller arrearage each week.

Pastrick said Smith has made 35 payments since June, 1973.

Solar Heating Eyed For Van Buren School

By DENNIS COGSWELL

Paw Paw Bureau

LAWRENCE — Van Buren county's new $1 million school for the handicapped may be at least partially powered by energy from the sun.

Anticipating a sharp rise in the price of conventional forms of power in the future, the Van Buren intermediate school board last night voted to pay its architectural firm $3,840 to plan what may become the first large scale use of solar heating panels in the area.

According to Bill Garzelli, an architect for Prince and Associates, Kalamazoo, 2,400 square feet of solar panels would be used to provide about 30 per cent of the school's total heating needs.

Energy from the panels would heat all the water in the school, including a therapy pool, and heated water collected during the day would be stored in tanks for use later, he said.

At $25 per square foot of panel, Garzelli estimated the cost of the solar power at $90,000. Based on a comparable current price of 35 cents per gallon for fuel oil, the project is expected to pay for itself in 20 years.

The price could be cheaper in the sense that the costs of fossil fuels are expected to go up 200 per cent in the next 20 years, he added.

"The technical effectiveness of solar power has been demonstrated," he said. "The only problem is the initial cost. If it weren't for the initial cost we'd be doing it everywhere."

To power the entire school with solar energy would require 8,000 square feet of panel, and based on the $25 figure, would cost $200,000.

Board members indicated that they were investigating only partial solar use because they wanted to stay within the budget set for the school. Bids for the school, which is being financed through a $1,010,000 bond issue passed Feb. 24, are scheduled to be opened June 2.

Supt. Ernest Shaw said the decision in part was based on the fact that natural gas is not expected to be available for use at the school.

Garzelli said that at present there is only one other large scale solar energy project, in Macomb county, being planned in the entire state.

In other areas, the board authorized Shaw to seek approval from the state to borrow $149,785 against anticipated taxes to be collected next January. The taxes are part of a 1.5 mill increase in the amount levied for special education programs approved by intermediate district voters Feb. 24.

The loan would be used to hire an additional 16 special education staff members. Although the district is authorized to levy a total of 2.5 mills for special education, Shaw said he hoped to levy only two mills because of the economic problems now facing taxpayers.

William Bolinger, assistant director of the Van Buren Skills center, said open houses for the general public would be held at the facility from 6-8 p.m. May 12, and 12:30-3 p.m. May 18.

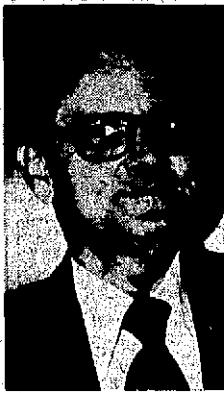

Bolinger also said he was encouraged by a survey of center students which showed that 75 per cent preferred the methods of instruction used at the vocational education facility to those used at their home school. Students attend the center for half the day, and their own high school for the other.

The board approved a $6,300 expenditure to finance a special two week curriculum development program for skills center leavers this summer.

Also approved were the transfer of property owned by William Colgren, Sr. and William Colgren, Jr., both of route 2, Lawrence, from the Bangor to the Lawrence school district.

A low bid for two school buses, at $10,300 each, from the McFadden corporation was accepted, and approval to hire 87 employees for the migrant summer program authorized.

Shaw announced that the board will open bids on the sale of bonds to finance the school for the handicapped at a special meeting May 19.

Covert Senior Citizens Sue For Absentee Voting Right

PAW PAW — Four senior citizens filed a class action suit in Van Buren circuit court here yes-

the right to vote by absentee ballot.

The suit asks that the court declare that no action of the school system or any state law be allowed to deprive them of the right to vote by absentee ballot, and that the court issue an injunction or restraining order preventing the district from not allowing them to vote absentee.

Covert, traditionally has had a very high number of absentee ballots in elections. The use of the ballots has been a source of controversy for a number of years.

The plaintiffs in the action, Eugene and Mattie Hill, and Clifford and Louise Perkins, all of whom are over 62, claimed in the suit that on Jan. 12 the school board voted to make Covert a non-registered district in elections.

An attorney for the four said he understood that the law on non-registered districts makes no provision for absentee voters.

The purpose of the move, the suit contended, was to eliminate the use of all absentee ballots in school elections except on bond issues.

South Haven Township Will Fight Annexation Ruling

By TOM RENNER

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven township board last night authorized a legal challenge of a decision by the state Boundary commission to annex a 30-acre tract of township land to the city of South Haven.

The board in a unanimous vote authorized its attorney to file a petition seeking a judicial review by the Ingham county circuit court.

The boundary commission on April 14 approved a petition from the city to annex the property, saying the city was better equipped to service the area. The property is totally surrounded by the city.

The township board said it was seeking the judicial review on the grounds that "the determination of the boundary commission is such that residents (were) deprived any right to vote on the question."

The state act on annexation does not allow for a vote of the affected people when the land in question contains fewer than 100 people. The township had suggested that a larger area be annexed so that a referendum vote of the people would be possible, but the proposal was rejected by the state agency.

In other areas, the board voted not to contribute funds to the Community Recreation and Education program. The board had been asked to contribute $5,000, but said it was rejecting the idea on the basis of public opinion at the annual meeting in April.

The recreation and education program is funded by the city of South Haven and South Haven school system in addition to fees that are collected. Townships that are located within the school district have been asked to contribute.

The board voted to continue its $300 contribution to the Greater South Haven Area Chamber of Commerce despite similar public opinion at the annual meeting against the appropriation. Supervisor James Schnake noted that the Chamber had since documented that it aimed promotional programs to the benefit of the township.

The board voted to allow its elected officials to participate in Social Security. The participation will require that the township match the officials' 5.88 per cent contribution to the fund.

The board said it does not object if the Michigan and Wisconsin Gas Line company installs a 42-inch in diameter natural gas line through property at the southeast corner of the township. Township approval gives the company authority to construct its line across public properties.

Tri-County Fence company of Kalamazoo was awarded a $2,450 contract to install 924 feet of chain-link fence which will designate the public access to Lake Michigan near 14th avenue and 77th street.

The board agreed to pay 20 per cent of the estimated $11,000 cost for installing a drain to solve a water problem in the Lambert subdivision. Balance of cost will be paid by the county road commission, state highway department and property owners over a three year period, according to county drain commissioner Elmer Hearn.

Board members expressed concern over future financing of its ambulance service. Clerk Franklin Torp noted that the service might lose two of its employees who are funded by CETA and that in the near future there will be a need to consider purchase of a new ambulance.

Van Buren county ambulance services are financed in part by a countywide millage which expired this year. Torp said he expects the Van Buren county chapter of the Michigan Township association will recommend to the county commissioners that the millage question for ambulance services be submitted to the voters for renewal.

Covert Senior Citizens Sue For Absentee Voting Right

By DENNIS COGSWELL

Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — Four senior citizens filed a class action suit in Van Buren circuit court here yesterday, challenging what they said was an attempt by the Covert school board to deny them the right to vote by absentee ballot.

The suit asks that the court declare that no action of the school system or any state law be allowed to deprive them of the right to vote by absentee ballot, and that the court issue an injunction or restraining order preventing the district from not allowing them to vote absentee in the June 14 election.

Covert traditionally has had a very high number of absentee ballots in elections. The use of the ballots has been a source of controversy for a number of years.

The plaintiffs in the action, Eugene and Mattie Hill, and Clifford and Louise Perkins, all of whom are over 62, claimed in the suit that on Jan. 12 the school board voted to make Covert a non-registered district in elections.

An attorney for the four said he understood that the law on non-registered districts makes no provision for absentee voters.

If allowed, such action would deprive the defendants of their constitutional rights and be in violation of the state constitution, since by law anyone who is 62 or over may vote absentee, the suit said.

Last August, Jerry Sarno, Covert township supervisor, charged that a 16-mill property tax renewal election was improperly handled because 176 absentee ballots were challenged but not counted election night. He also said that some voters were "harassed" when they attempted to vote in person at the polls.

The board in turn voted to launch an investigation of misuse of absentee ballots and possible fraud. Absentee ballots usually run heavily against bond issues and property tax proposals.

"It's our contention that under the constitution the legislature has to provide for an absentee ballot," said Atty. Harry Contos, Jr., Kalamazoo, who filed the suit.

Contos said that in a registered district voters must be registered with the clerk of the municipality in order to vote. In a non-registered district, registration is not required, and a voter must provide no identification unless challenged.

He said the school board will not actually be served with the suit until Circuit Judge Meyer Warshawsky makes a decision on whether to issue a restraining order.

South Haven Township Will Fight Annexation Ruling

By TOM RENNER
South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven township board last night authorized a legal challenge of a decision by the state Boundary commission to annex a 30-acre tract of township land to the city of South Haven.

The board in a unanimous vote authorized its attorney to file a petition seeking a judicial review by the Ingham county circuit court.

The boundary commission on April 14 approved a petition from the city to annex the property, saying the city was better equipped to service the area. The property is totally surrounded by the city.

The township board said it was seeking the judicial review on the grounds that "the determination of the boundary commission is such that residents (were) deprived any right to vote on the question."

The state act on annexation does not allow for a vote of the affected people when the land in question contains fewer than 100 people. The township had suggested that a larger area be annexed so that a referendum vote of the people would be possible, but the proposal was rejected by the state agency.

In other areas, the board voted not to contribute funds to the Community Recreation and Education program. The board had been asked to contribute $3,000, but said it was rejecting the idea on the basis of public opinion at the annual meeting in April.

The recreation and education program is funded by the city of South Haven and South Haven school system in addition to fees that are collected. Townships that are located within the school district have been asked to make a contribution.

The board voted to continue its $300 contribution to the Greater South Haven Area Chamber of Commerce despite similar public opinion at the annual meeting against the appropriation. Supervisor James Schnake noted that the Chamber had since documented that it aimed promotional programs to the benefit of the township.

The board voted to allow its elected officials to participate in Social Security. The participation will require that the township match the officials' 5.85 per cent contribution to the fund.

The board said it does not object if the Michigan and Wisconsin Gas Line company installs a 42-inch in diameter natural gas line through property at the southeast corner of the township. Township approval gives the company authority to construct its line across public properties.

Tri-County Fence company of Kalamazoo was awarded a $2,450 contract to install 924 feet of chain-link fence which will designate the public access to Lake Michigan near 14th avenue and 77th street.

The board agreed to pay 20 per cent of the estimated $11,000 cost for installing a drain to solve a water problem in the Lambert subdivision. Balance of cost will be paid by the county road commission, state highway department and property owners over a three year period, according to county drain commissioner Elmyra Hearns.

Board members expressed concern over future financing of its ambulance service. Clerk Franklin Torp noted that the service might lose two of its employees who are funded by CETA and that in the near future there will be a need to consider purchase of a new ambulance.

Van Buren county ambulance services are financed in part by a countywide millage which expired this year. Torp said he expects the Van Buren county chapter of the Michigan Township association will recommend to the county commissioners that the millage question for ambulance services be submitted to the voters for renewal.

Mexico Hails Oil Finds

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government says its new oil fields in the southern states of Tabasco and Chiapas have boosted its estimate of the country's petroleum reserves to between 30 and 60 billion barrels, three to six times that of Alaska's North Slope. Francisco Javier Alejo, the secretary of natural resources, told a news conference Tuesday that Mexico's proven reserves are now 7 billion barrels, an increase of 1 billion since March. "We have just begun to explore," he said.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Worries Deflate Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation and interest rate worries continued to push stock market prices lower today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped about a point in the early going. Declines outnumbered advances by more than a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Investors seemed to be troubled mostly by analysts' report that the Federal Reserve appeared to have tightened its credit policy a bit more.

At the opening, the government reported that the rise of its wholesale price index accelerated to a 9.6 per cent annual rate in April, from 2.4 per cent in March.

Brokers noted, however, that Wall Street had been bracing for some unpleasant news on that score for several days.

Today's early prices included General Mills, down 1/8 at 29 1/2; Ford Motor, off 1/4 at 57; Mountain Fuel Supply, down 1/8 at 38, and Gulf Oil, up 1/4 at 25 1/2.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average lost 7.24 to 988.46.

Declines outnumbered advances by about a 5-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index dropped 27 to 53.70.

Big Board volume, at 14,87 million shares, was the third highest of the year.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose 99 to 102.08.

Gerber Co. To Pay 30c Dividend

CHECAGO — Directors of Gerber Products Co. Wednesday declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share, payable on June 9, 1976, to shareholders of record on May 18 of this year.

Announcement of the dividend actions was made by John C. Suerth, chairman and chief executive officer of the baby-needs firm.

"Final sales and earnings for the year ended March 31, 1976, are not available, pending completion of the annual audit," Suerth pointed out. Audited sales and earnings figures will be announced as soon as they are available later this month, a company spokesman said.

The annual meeting of Gerber Products Co. will be held in Fremont, Mich., on Wednesday, July 28. A record date of June 4, 1976, was established for shareholders entitled to vote at the annual meeting.

Banks Give Loans For Detroit Bills

DETROIT (AP) — Seven Detroit banks relented and agreed Wednesday to make $13 million in loans to help the city pay its bills.

The banks refused to lend the money six weeks ago. City Finance Director Dennis Green said the bank officials changed their minds because Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and Gov. William Milliken recently agreed on a state aid package for Detroit.

The city will pay an interest rate of seven per cent on the loan. The banks charged the city 7.75 per cent for a similar loan in March.

The bank syndicate agreed in March to lend $27 in short-term tax anticipation notes, but refused the city another $13 million.

Band Rating Superior

NEW BUFFALO — The New Buffalo high school band received a superior rating at the state Band and Orchestra festival in Muskegon May 1.

Bison Band Director Thomas Holets said, "While the band has been rated superior at the district level for the past 11 years, this is the first time they have been rated superior at the state festival since 1972."

This is the sixth superior rating received at the state festival under Holets.

SOCIAL SECURITY OR A PUBLIC PENSION?

In a desperate effort to save an estimated $200 million a year that New York City now pays in Social Security taxes, Mayor Abraham Beame has decided to pull New York City's employees out of the Social Security system. Then this city's employees would be among the minority (30 per cent) of state and local government workers protected only by their own staff pension plans.

Beame's move is understandable enough; my town is in a horrifying financial squeeze. His right to do this is indisputable; under the U.S. Constitution, the federal government cannot tax a state without the state's permission and New York's employees are now covered under voluntary arrangements made at the option of the state. Once out of the system, though, following a two-year notice of termination, the state or local government could not bring its employees back under Social Security — not without an act of Congress.

So, should New York and other troubled cities withdraw their employees from Social Security? Or should the cities cut back on their own pension plans and stay under Social Security?

"Stay in Social Security, cut back on your own pension plan," concluded Robert Flory, a pension expert who has just published a comprehensive study "Public Employee Pension Funds," commissioned by the Twentieth Century Fund. Social Security, he emphasizes, should be mandatory for all public employees — federal, state and local — just as it is mandatory for all workers in private enterprise.

Government pension plans should be integrated with Social Security, so that public employees do not have top-heavy retirement protection due to the combination of Social Security with their own pension plans.

The staff pension plans should be redesigned so that they take into account increases in SS benefits.

Your benefits are protected by the power of our entire economy, do not rely on the financial health of a single municipality (state or local), single firm or industry.

Social Security can be readily financed so that the program is kept up to date with living costs and wage increases.

SS benefits are tax-free. Other retirement benefits become taxable as soon as the employee has collected an amount equal to his contribution to the plan.

No other program provides the extent of family protection you get under Social Security. Income and health insurance protection in your older years, protection for your family in case of your death or disability.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Worries Deflate Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation and interest rate worries continued to push stock market prices lower today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped about a point in the early going. Declines outnumbered advances by more than a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Investors seemed to be troubled mostly by analysts' report that the Federal Reserve appeared to have tightened its credit policy a bit more.

At the opening, the government reported that the rise of its wholesale price index accelerated to a 9.6 per cent annual rate in April, from 2.4 per cent in March.

Brokers noted, however, that Wall Street had been bracing for some unpleasant news on that score for several days.

Today's early prices included General Mills, down 1/8 at 28 1/8; Ford Motor, off 1/4 at 57; Mountain Fuel Supply, down 3/8 at 38, and Gulf Oil, up 1/8 at 25 3/8.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average lost 7.24 to 986.46.

Declines outnumbered advances by about a 5-3 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index dropped 27 to 53.70.

Big Board volume at 14.97 million shares, was the third lightest of the year.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .09 to 102.06.

Gerber Co. To Pay 30c Dividend

CHICAGO — Directors of Gerber Products Co. Wednesday declared a quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share, payable on June 9, 1976, to shareholders of record on May 18 of this year.

Announcement of the dividend actions was made by John C. Suerth, chairman and chief executive officer of the baby needs firm.

"Final sales and earnings for the year ended March 31, 1976, are not available, pending completion of the annual audit," Suerth pointed out. Audited sales and earnings figures will be announced as soon as they are available later this month a company spokesman said.

The annual meeting of Gerber Products Co. will be held in Fremont, Mich., on Wednesday, July 28. A record date of June 4, 1976, was established for shareholders entitled to vote at the annual meeting.

Banks Give Loans For Detroit Bills

DETROIT (AP) — Seven Detroit banks relented and agreed Wednesday to make $13 million in loans to help the city pay its bills.

The banks refused to lend the money six weeks ago. City Finance Director Dennis Green said the bank officials changed their minds because Detroit Mayor Coleman Young and Gov. William Milliken recently agreed on a state aid package for Detroit.

The city will pay an interest rate of seven per cent on the loan. The banks charged the city 7.75 per cent for a similar loan in March.

The bank syndicate agreed in March to lend $27 in short-term tax anticipation notes, but refused the city another $13 million.

SOCIAL SECURITY OR A PUBLIC PENSION?

In a desperate effort to save an estimated $200 million a year that New York City now pays in Social Security taxes, Mayor Abraham Beame has decided to pull New York City's employees out of the Social Security system. Then this city's employees would be among the minority (30 per cent) of state and local government workers protected only by their own staff pension plans.

Beame's move is understandable enough; my town is in a horrifying financial squeeze. His right to do this is indisputable; under the U.S. Constitution, the federal government cannot tax a state without the state's permission and New York's employees are now covered under voluntary arrangements made at the option of the state. Once out of the system, though, following a two-year notice of termination, the state or local government could not bring its employees back under Social Security — not without an act of Congress.

Tilove insists there is no justification for retirement benefits higher than take-home pay before retirement — and he calls for a thorough re-examination of state and local pension plans in terms of benefit levels, current costs and the efforts of states and localities to cope with rising costs. He also reminds us that there are many public employees with standard retirement benefits and that the Social Security program was designed to serve as the nation's primary floor of income protection.

"Stay in Social Security, cut back on your own pension plan," concludes Robert Tilove, a pension expert who has just published a comprehensive study "Public Employee Pension Funds," commissioned by the Twentieth Century Fund. Social Security, he emphasizes, should be mandatory for all public employees — federal, state and local — as it is mandatory for all workers in private enterprise.

Government pension plans should be integrated with Social Security, so that public employees do not have top-heavy retirement protection due to the combination of Social Security with their own pension plans.

The staff pension plans should be redesigned so that they take into account increases in SS benefits in recent years.

Under no circumstances should employees be allowed to end up with net retirement incomes that are higher than their take-home pay just before they retire.

— SS benefits are tax-free. Other retirement benefits become taxable as soon as the employee has collected an amount equal to his contributions to the plan.

— No other program provides the extent of family protection you get under Social Security: income and health insurance protection in your older years, protection for your family in case of your death or disability.

Costs Of Owning Home All Higher

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A typical monthly payment for principal and interest on an average new home in 1965 was under $120. The comparable figure in 1975 was about $275.

In those figures are contained much of the reason why new home sales fell to a rate of well under one million units a year during the recession. But only part of the reason. High operating costs also were a factor.

A review of expenses in operating a house show in recent years taxes, insurance, heat, electricity, repairs and services have combined to rise faster than median family income.

The mortgage payment, in fact, is a relatively stable expense year to year, once the loan is negotiated. For the most part it remains the same unless the purchaser obtains a variable rate mortgage, which might rise with the current costs of money.

The higher monthly notes that must be paid today are a result solely of initial costs: the higher prices of houses, sometimes greater down payments, and generally higher interest rates than those of 10 years ago.

But once set, they remain the same. Not so with operating costs.

Studying the figures, Chase Manhattan Bank estimates that tax bills nationally have been climbing nearly 6 per cent a year for the past decade and that they now average perhaps $600 a month for new houses.

New Treatment Slows Stomach Cancer Effects

By WARREN E. LEARY

AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Powerful anticancer drugs used together significantly prolong survival of some patients with advanced stomach cancer — a fatal condition virtually untreatable in the past, Georgetown University scientists announced today. The scientists said about half of 21 advanced stomach cancer patients in a study responded to the treatment, with some of the patients so far living more than three times longer than with conventional therapy.

The big thing to emphasize is that with gastric (stomach) cancer, there really haven't been other treatment results indicating this prolonged survival," Dr. John Macdonald said in an interview.

"This indicates there is now a 50 per cent chance that gastric cancer cases can respond to the program and, for those who do, there could be a relatively long survival with improved quality of life compared to present statistics," he said.

Macdonald and Drs. Philip S. Schein, Winston Henn and Paul Woolley presented the results of their study in Toronto at a meeting of the American Society of Clinical Oncology.

Stomach cancer is the sixth major cause of cancer death in the United States. The American Cancer Society estimates that 14,000 persons will die of the disease this year and that 22,000 new cases will be diagnosed.

With the best previous drug treatment for stomach cancer, the average survival time was only five and one half months for 50 per cent of the patients," Macdonald said. "There was almost no difference between this and the average survival time of similar cases if untreated — for 50 per cent of those the average survival was 3-4 months."

In the study, 10 of 21 patients responded to the new treatment. Two of the 10 died after surviving more than 10 months after treatment.

The remaining eight have survived from five to 15 months after beginning therapy, with six of the patients so far surviving past nine months, Macdonald said.

The therapy involves using three anticancer agents — adriamycin, 5-fluorouracil and mitomycin — together and singularly over an eight-week treatment cycle which is continually repeated, he said.

Macdonald said the treatment worked equally as well on persons who had surgery to remove their primary stomach tumor as it did on those who did not. The therapy also worked in advanced cases where the cancer had spread from the original site to other parts of the body, he added.

Macdonald said the therapy should be even more effective against early stomach cancer and that studies have begun with larger groups of patients to test this.

"We think this will be a real advance for patients with less severe cases, and we foresee success similar to what is now seen in breast cancer with chemotherapy (drug treatment)," he said.

Multi-drug chemotherapy with breast cancer so far shows a relapse rate of only 5 to 10 per cent in three years, he said.

Bar Ordered To Pay $2 Million In Traffic Accident Liability

By W. ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer

A Beverly Hills bar poured the shot that may be heard round the nation.

Alcohol helped cost Claire Cox her life, actor James Stacy has left arm and leg, and motorist Carter Gordon a term in the state prison for manslaughter and drunken driving.

And now, the Beverly Hills bar that served Gordon has been sued successfully for more than $2 million under a state law that makes taverns liable for the actions of their patrons. Bartenders around the country contacted by The Associated Press said such rulings are unfair, and are easily exploited by the unscrupulous. They add they always try to cut off the patron who has had too much, although admitting they sometimes aren't too successful.

"We'll have to be more careful," said bartender Clem Abbott of the Pasadena, Calif., Elks Club. "They've prosecuted bartenders before for that — fined them for giving a man too much to drink. But with that kind of money, houses will begin cracking down on their policy."

Drawing attention to so-called "Dram Shop Laws" was a jury's verdict in the Stacy case Tuesday. The Los Angeles court awarded Stacy $1.8 million and Mrs. Cox's estate $400,000. Mrs. Cox was a passenger on Stacy's motorcycle when it was rammed in 1973 by Gordon's auto.

Stacy also won a $175,000 settlement from Los Angeles on his claim that the road where the accident occurred was poorly maintained.

Lawyers for the Chopping Block Bar, where Gordon had been drinking, said Wednesday they will appeal and may ask a reduction in the award.

Norman Manha, Western director of the National License Beverage Association (NLBA), says this decision is the eighth or ninth major damage award won against a California tavern in recent years.

As in malpractice insurance, the result has been a tripling of tavern insurance costs. The average saloon now pays about $1,200 for Dram Shop insurance in California, Manha said.

Manha, who owns two taverns in the Hayward, Calif., area, said one problem is inherent in such laws. He said motorists stop for a drink in a tavern, then buy a bottle at a package liquor store. But the bar takes the blame.

Illinois is one of the states with Dram Shop Law. Bill Smith, a spokesman for the NLBA in Washington, said it's hard to say how many states have such laws. He said some state courts have interpreted liquor licensing regulations to hold taverns liable in these cases.

The association wants these laws repealed because they place "a unique burden on the beverage alcohol retailer" by making him liable for the actions of "nonrelated second parties."

Smith, whose organization includes some 40,000 taverns and restaurants, said licensing laws are tough enough to insure that bars are responsible. He noted these laws include the power to suspend or revoke licenses that represent investments of thousands of dollars.

In Nashville, Bob Catamach of Friday's Tavern said bartenders there can be fined $500 for serving a drunk.

He said an export from the Minnesota highway patrol called in to reconstruct the accident found that Mrs. Millard's car was traveling at a speed of less than 10 miles per hour, but the Miller vehicle was traveling at "a high rate of speed well in excess of the 55 mile per hour speed limit" when the smash-up occurred.

Michigan case law has held that one making a left turn is not bound to anticipate that an approaching auto is exceeding the lawful speed," Wills said.

Mrs. Millard and seven other passengers in her car, all members of the Van Buren Folk Dancers returning from a Kalamazoo performance, were injured.

Mrs. Millard was released from Bronson hospital, Kalamazoo, April 10. Her husband is Dr. David Millard, a deputy Van Buren county medical examiner.

And sometimes customers become "belligerent. You get real problems when you try to cut them off, ..." said Betty Ginter, who runs the Bloomfield, Colo., Manor Lounge.

"Everyone's level of inebriation is different. There is no real rule of thumb about cutting someone off."

Jurors Cite Weak Government Case In Acquittal Of Moore

By JENNIFER KERR

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)

— Jurors in the federal extortion trial of Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr. say they acquitted the Republican governor because the government did not present a strong enough case.

"I think the whole thing boils down to this: We didn't see or hear any actual proof of guilt," said juror Edie E. Ballard, a Danville piano teacher.

The jury returned an innocent verdict Wednesday, the 11th day of the trial in U.S. District Court.

Moore and a former aide, William Loy, were indicted last December on charges of conspiring to extort $25,000 from Charleston businessman Theodore R. Price in 1972 to obtain the approval of a pending application for a state bank charter.

"The government didn't have a real good, tight case," said juror Ray Raymond Burst, a factory inspector from Cottageville. "The U.S. attorneys did a wonderful job of presenting it, but it just wasn't enough."

"It went to a point, and stopped," said Clara Mae Kinder of St. Albans. "We didn't get the concrete evidence we thought we were going to get."

The prosecution said a lot of things that were possible but you've got to prove them," said Kenneth Pettry, a St. Albans machinist.

After the verdict was returned, Moore, 53, said, "I want to say to my fellow West Virginians more than anybody else, this should never have happened to you. These circumstances should never have occurred and a great apology is due the citizens of this state."

The verdict, which came at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday after more than seven hours of deliberation, brought cheers and applause from the courtroom full of Moore supporters.

Moore and Loy smiled broadly after the verdict was read, and they were promptly congratulated by friends and family.

Federal prosecutors would not talk about the verdict.

A secretary for U.S. Atty. John A. Field III, whom Moore had accused of conducting "a vicious political vendetta," said Field "has no comment and is not seeing anybody."

Loy, a 44-year-old Martinsburg lawyer, said, "I would say that you cannot subvert a system of justice that has for 200 years protected the innocent with a judicial procedure second to none."

In his summation, Loy's attorney, Edward Eardley, said, "It's the flimsy tissue of a so-called case built on the testimony of one man."

The one man was Price, the government's chief witness, who begins a three-year federal prison sentence on May 13. He pleaded guilty to one of 37 counts of defrauding customers of Diversified Mountaineer Corp., which collapsed one year after the end of Price's plan to get a bank charter.

Price had testified that he delivered to Moore's office a $25,000 cash contribution for his 1972 re-election campaign, and that he was told by Moore that his bank charter application would be approved. It was rejected.

Woman Driver Denies Biting Trooper's Hand

ALLEGAN — A Chicago woman accused of biting a state trooper on the hand when he arrested her Tuesday, appeared in district court here yesterday. Mary Brown, 44, pleaded innocent to a charge of assault and battery and was ordered held in lieu of a $100 bond.

According to state police from South Haven, Tpr. James Blair reported he was bitten during a struggle with a woman over keys to her car. The trooper said the keys were needed so the woman's car could be towed away. Blair said the fracas came after he stopped the car on I-196 near Fennville for speeding and found that the driver was wanted in connection with a March, 1975 speeding ticket.

Paw Paw Woman Is Cleared In Death

PAW PAW — Van Buren Prosecutor Frank Wills said yesterday no charges will be filed against Mrs. Margaret Millard of Paw Paw, the driver of one of two cars involved in a March 27 collision which led to the death of two people.

Wills said a state police investigation showed the driver of the other car, Loren Miller, 22, of Mattawan, who was killed in the smash-up, had been driving at a high rate of speed and was under the influence of alcohol at the time of the collision.

Miller's car crashed into Mrs. Millard's car as she was turning left off Red Arrow highway near 29½ street into the driveway of Stephanie Makowski, 15, a passenger in Mrs. Millard's car who died April 8 of injuries received in the smash-up.

Wills said a blood sample taken from Miller's body and analyzed at the Holland regional crime laboratory showed he had a blood-alcohol content of .20 per cent at the time of his death. That is twice as much as is necessary to be presumed under the influence of alcohol by Michigan law, according to Wills.

He said an export from the Minnesota highway patrol called in to reconstruct the accident found that Mrs. Millard's car was traveling at a speed of less than 10 miles per hour, but the Miller vehicle was traveling at "a high rate of speed well in excess of the 55 mile per hour speed limit" when the smash-up occurred.

Two Drain Projects Get Bloom'dale Nod

BLOOMINGDALE — The Bloomingdale village council last night gave preliminary approval to two projects aimed at improving water drainage in two parts of the community.

The council voted to complete the work on the block-long Rumney drain on Rumney street and voted to seek estimates on costs of tiles necessary to construct a surface drain at the end of East Kalamazoo street.

In other action, the council rejected offers from two firms that had submitted purchase bids on a loader-dozer that the village had advertised for sale.

Rejected bids were $2,000 from K. Kensey of Kalamazoo and $2,650 from Tomlin and Son of Delton, trustees said. The village is to re-advertise the machine.

The council also announced a public hearing on the village budget will be at the town hall at 7 p.m., June 9, followed by the regular council meeting at 7:30 p.m.

But Gyger acknowledged, "I sometimes see people drive out of here that I wish wouldn't."

Walter Meternick, manager of the Pete Fountain's French Quarter Inn in New Orleans, said, "We instruct our bartenders that someone who gets too boisterous or becomes a nuisance be asked to leave the premises. Two More Niles Policemen Are Indicted By Grand Jury

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

Two more Niles police officers were arrested this morning after being indicted yesterday by the Berrien citizens' grand jury on perjury, breaking and entering, and receiving and concealing stolen property charges.

Arrested were Det. Capt. Paul Winquist, 48, and Patrolman William Raabe, 40. Both were to have been arraigned today in Berrien Fifth District court. Winquist on charges of perjury before the grand jury and receiving and concealing stolen property valued at more than $100, and Raabe on one count of breaking and entering and three perjury charges.

The arrests bring to seven the number of present or former Niles police officers indicted by the grand jury. Four patrolmen and one former officer were indicted last month, mostly on perjury charges.

Malcolm House, chairman of the Niles board of public safety, said Winquist and Raabe will be suspended without pay for an initial period of 20 days before a review. He noted the other four officers previously indicted were "put on indefinite suspension for conduct unbecoming a police officer." All are awaiting preliminary examination in district court.

The receiving and concealing charge against Winquist stems from a Royal typewriter allegedly taken from the property room at the police department during the first week of March. The breaking and entering charge against Raabe alleges he broke into the Kool-O-Matic Corp., at 1831 Terminal road, Niles, in November. The firm manufactures house fans.

Raabe in 1973 was acquitted in Berrien Circuit court of a manslaughter charge arising from the death of a prisoner who allegedly struck his head on a tree while being taken into custody and later died of pneumonia.

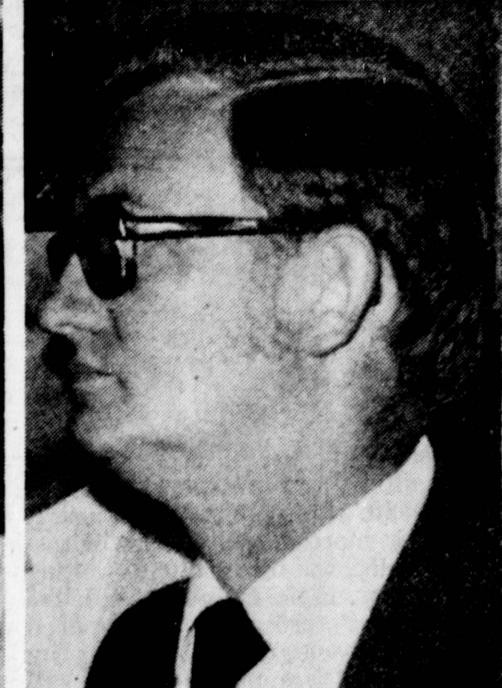

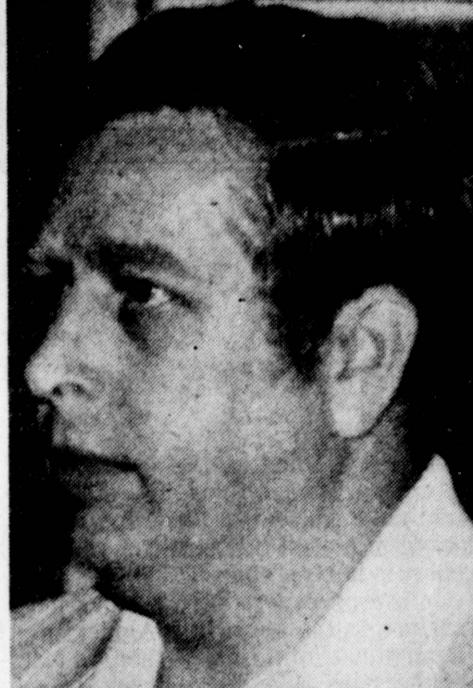

Winquist has been with the Niles department for 19 years, while Raabe has served for six years.

Berrien Prosecutor John A. Smitanka would give no indication of when more indictments may be returned. Yesterday's indictments bring to nine the number of people indicted by the county's first citizens' grand jury.

The first two indictments were returned against St. Joseph Atty. Robert Locke and Thomas McCoy, and in early April indictments were returned against Niles Patrolmen Alan DeLee, Gary Koller, Michael Lewandowski, and William Mason, and former officer Thomas Dipert.

Before the indictments, the Niles police force had 25 full-time officers.

ITALIAN QUAKE KILLS HUNDREDS

Millions Panicked By Strong Tremors As Far North As Netherlands

VENICE, Italy (AP) — About 300 persons were believed killed in an earthquake that jolted northeast Italy Thursday night. Strong tremors were felt in at least six other countries, causing panic among millions, but there were no reports of casualties or major damage outside of Italy.

In addition to the area of Italy rocked by the quake, there were tremors in sections of Yugoslavia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, West Germany, The Netherlands and Belgium. Hundreds of Belgians fled from high-rise apartment houses.

Italy's quake devastated dozens of towns and villages in the Tagliamento River Valley near the Yugoslav border. Major Italian cities did not suffer heavy damage or casualties.

National police headquarters in Rome said 187 bodies had been recovered in 19 towns, but several villages nestled in the foothills of the Alps were still cut off.

A police spokesman said most of the damage was in towns and villages along both sides of the Tagliamento, which flows from the eastern Alps into the Adriatic some 40 miles northeast of Venice.

Two more tremors struck the area this morning, but there were no reports of casualties or damage.

A few chimneys were knocked down in Venice and thousands rushed to the Piazza San Marco and other open spaces seeking safety, but no casualties or major damage was reported there or in other major cities.

The worst casualty toll was reported in Maiano, a town of 1,900 about four miles from the river and 11 miles from the district capital of Udine, where officials set up a command center.

Police said a series of sharp tremors killed 58, injured 300 and destroyed half the homes in Maiano. The town's mayor said the dead included a young girl crushed when a Renaissance bell tower fell.

The U.S. Air Force sent six helicopters with 10 medical officers, stretchers and other supplies from the air base at Vicenza to the quake area.

Italian army trucks carried troops into the area to begin digging through the rubble. They were joined by fire brigade vehicles and commercial bulldozers pressed into

Blossom Parade's Salute

To U.S. Starts At 1 P.M.

By MIKE WYNGARDEN

Staff Writer

The 43rd Grand Floral parade of Blossomtime moves through St. Joseph and Benton Harbor tomorrow carrying a Bicentennial theme.

"This Is Our Country" is the parade's title which has given float builders many ways in which to create displays of Americana.

For the eighth consecutive year, Gov. William Milliken will lead the parade as grand marshal. He hasn't missed walking the parade route since he succeeded George Romney in 1969.

The parade will step off from State and Elm streets in St. Joseph at 1 p.m. The procession then goes north on State, along Ship and Wayne streets, across the bridges to Benton Harbor, east on Main street to the finish line at Main and Fourth streets.

Some 100 units are entered in the parade including 24 floats. The floats range from Whirlpool Corporation's 1860's vintage steam locomotive to Clark Equipment Company's large eagle cradling a map of the United States in its wings, pulling a large horn of plenty with animated fruits and vegetables walking alongside.

Bay City has entered a float depicting its "Mural City" designation. The float features four moving panels showing four of the murals which appear on downtown Bay City buildings. Four other murals will interchange with these, saluting southwestern Michigan's Blossomtime festival.

Many of the floats display the nation's history including the will be some 31 high school bands from throughout southwestern Michigan.

Celebrities from various walks of life will grace the parade route. Al Kaline, retired Detroit Tigers baseball great,

Postponed Youth Parade Gets Sun

Sunny skies this morning promised that Blossomtime's youth parade that was rained out yesterday would proceed today. The parade was rescheduled for 3:30 p.m. today, starting at Highland avenue and Fourth streets, Benton Harbor, and moving to Market street for a finish at the old fruit market.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Forecasting Wheat Crop Is A Serious Business

Precisely at 3 p.m. on May 10, the Agriculture Department will release this month's crop production report. A score or more of reporters will instantly telephone the results to waiting news desks. In the hallway outside the department's press room, a hundred or so representatives of commodity houses and foreign embassies will snatch eagerly at copies being handed out.

Crop production reports are compiled monthly by the Agriculture Department's Statistical Reporting Service. The May report will cover a dozen commodities, ranging from almonds to taro. But it will command special attention because it will contain the first, full nationwide assessment of the 1976 winter wheat crop.

Depending on what the report shows, wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade, the nation's principal grain exchange, will rise or fall at the opening of the following day. For the United States grows more than half the wheat sold on the world market, and winter wheat, sown in the fall and harvested beginning in the late spring, accounts for three-quarters of the U.S. production.

Grain traders and foreign governments will study the report to see what effect the current midwestern drought is likely to have on the U.S. harvest. Some areas of the semi-arid Great Plains have received less than an inch of rainfall since mid-August of last year. As the drought has intensified, farmers have plowed under thousands of acres of withered wheat.

The Statistical Reporting Service compiles its crop forecasts under security conditions that rival those of the Central Intelligence Agency. The basic information is collected from mail surveys and on-the-spot inspections of farm conditions. The state-by-state data are sent to Washington and locked in a steel box until the day the report is to be prepared.

On a crop report day, a block-long corridor in the sprawling Agriculture Department building is sealed off. Windows are locked, shades are drawn and taped shut, telephones are cut off. Double doors at either end of the corridor are locked and watched over by uniformed guards. No one enters or leaves the corridor without a special pass and, once inside, no one can leave until the crop report has been printed and released.

The Crop Reporting Board begins examining the state summaries at 5 a.m. These are worked into national production forecasts (or, in the case of grains already harvested, national estimates) during a 10-hour work period. The press and others receive the report at 3 p.m., after the majority commodity exchanges have closed for the day.

While the security measures seem elaborate, they are absolutely necessary. A premature leak of information could mean millions of dollars to a commodity speculator. The information in the report also influences the grain purchasing plans of dozens of foreign governments and, by implication, the nutritional prospects of millions of people.

The midwestern drought has made this a nervous year for the commodity trade. What is not certain is how long the dry spell will last. The specter of the Dust Bowl of the 1930s haunts everyone. If rain does not come, food prices will rise for American consumers, and in the hungry world, millions may starve.

Welcome Surprise From Unexpected Source

Confirming expectations that exotic answers to some of man's most pressing problems may lie ahead is the story of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the water hyacinth. What could a plant possibly have to do with energy and fertilizer shortages, or the problem of waste disposal?

Quite a bit, NASA has discovered. To begin with, in an actual experiment, the space agency has found the water hyacinth is a very effective water cleanser — even when large volumes of pollutants are added to the water.

A 40-acre sewage lagoon containing wastes from 6,000 households was effectively cleaned simply by planting hyacinths. In a smaller experiment, the plant was found capable of cleaning water on seven-tenths of an acre which was the repository of a sewage flow of up to 500,000 gallons a day.

So effectively did the hyacinths consume the wastes that the plant multiplied to the point of becoming a burden. Then it was discovered that the plant, dried and ground, could be made into a cattle feed rich in protein and minerals.

Those plants which have been used to clean chemical wastes from water cannot be used for feed, but in laboratories they have been found to be an excellent source of methane gas. It is calculated that an acre of water hyacinths could produce two million cubic feet of gas, with the plant residue from that same acre producing half a ton of fertilizer a day.

Not a bad start for a plant which until recently was considered little more than a nuisance.

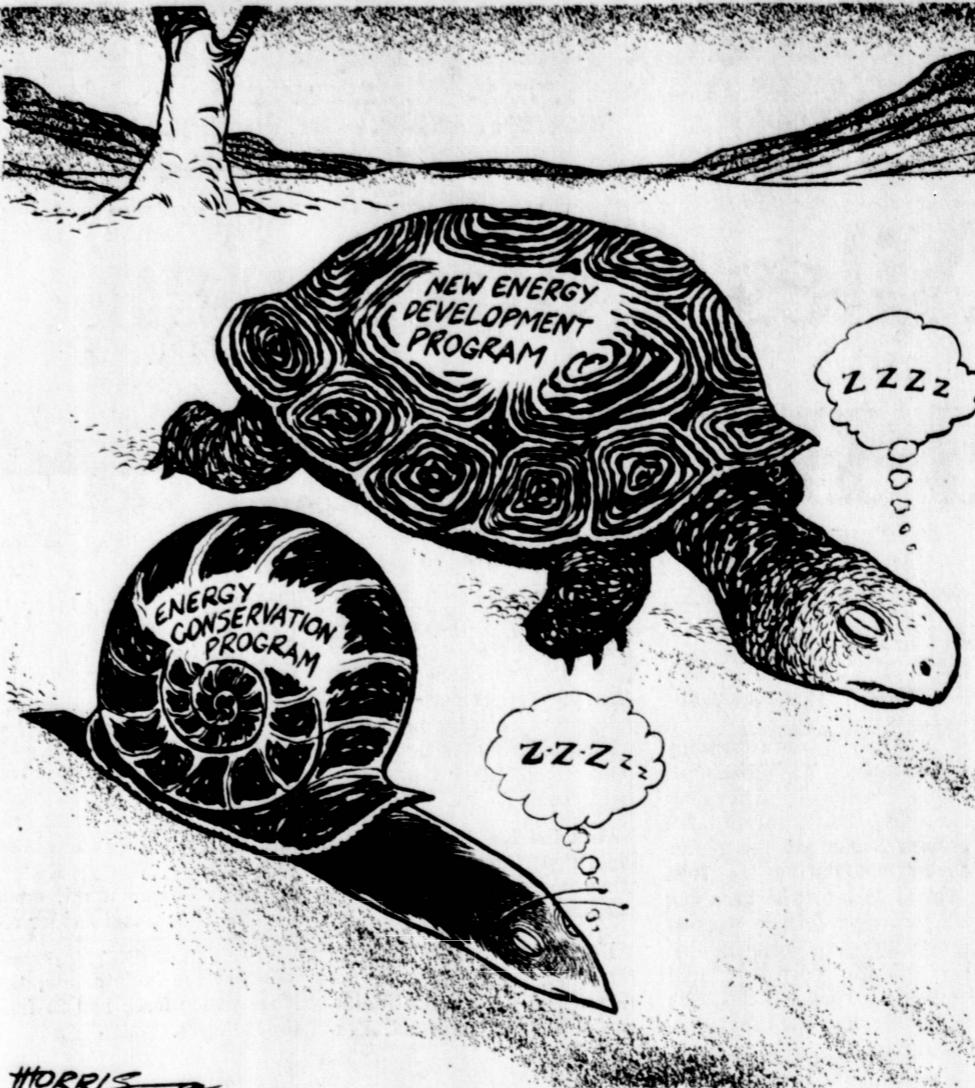

Oil Nations Find Boom Expensive

Life in the Arab oil-producing countries may never be the same as it was before the OPEC cartel was formed. Those Arabs enjoying the oil boom fervently hope that is the case. But excesses of the boom are beginning to show, and there are Arabs asking what it is doing to the fabric of their society.

As one Saudi Arabian newspaper put it: "Certain Western customs have been adopted in this country, the most dangerous of which are irresponsibility and carelessness."

New construction in major cities has outstripped municipal services. An influx of imported autos has brought their proud owners to the realization they often have little more than dirt roads on which to use them. Old traditions and new ways are in almost constant conflict. The Arabs are learning that even a boom can be costly.

TEENS AT MERCY OF GOVERNMENT

Editor,

"U.S. grants 19 tractor exemptions" was a puzzle of a heading. The item turned out to be about a Labor Department ruling that allows 19 local teenagers to operate tractors off their home farms. Another item some time ago concerned projections of great social dislocation in the U.S. because of the large segment of population made up of unemployed and unemployable young people. How are these two items seen as aspects of the same matter?

Young people today, unlike in former times, have little to do in the productive life of the community. That is, they're supposed to just sort of be around somewhere until their late teens or twenties, when they can begin assuming responsibilities and privileges that should have been theirs since early teen years. Minimum wage laws, compulsory school attendance, exclusive unions (which get their unwarranted power through U.S. labor laws), and endless government interference in private occupations prevent young people from entering the exhilarating world of meaningful work when they are ready to do so.

By arrogating to itself the power to declare this or that teenager qualified to operate farm equipment, the Labor Department implies that the vast number of other teenagers are not qualified to participate in ordinary productive work. It's like having the paternalistic government say, "All right, you, you and you come on out and start learning to take on human responsibilities. The rest of you animals stay put till we call you."

URGES STUDY OF CONSTITUTION

Editor,

Your article of April 13, "Michigan Communists Get Another Chance," recalls the words of James Madison, 1787 — "Every man who loves peace, every man who loves his country, every man who loves liberty ought to have it ever before his eyes that he may cherish in his heart a due attachment to the Union of America and be able to set due value on the means of preserving it."

Citizens of Michigan wake up. These people, by claiming to be communists, forfeit all rights to the first amendment. These people are traitors and enemies. The 14th Amendment, section 3, should be used by both houses of Congress.

Article One, Section 10, is being violated by the State of Michigan if these people are not stopped short.

Citizens of Michigan the checks and balances of all the insidious usurpations of your domestic tranquility and liberties are all in the constitution. Read it, study the words and broaden the wisdom of these words by studying the eighty-five papers written by Hamilton, Madison and Jay in 1787.

These papers will explain the Constitution to you.

Once you have the real truth about our Constitution, we the people gave to our elected, you will see how we can stop all the usurpations which are eating away the very substance of our liberty.

Lakeside — Norma Jean Arnt, a 17-year-old senior at Watervliet high school, was chosen the Cinderella of the Berrien county Pomona Grange Sunday at the conclusion of the annual "mystery ride" staged by the county Grange. The event attracted over 200 Grange members, who formed a long motor caravan at the court house in St. Joseph and finally wound up at a previous secret destination, the Lakeside school. Miss Arnt will represent Berrien county at the state Grange Convention in October.

The first straw hat has appeared and the first bathing suits have splashed into the waters of Lake Michigan. With the mercury yesterday hitting the high spots under a sun that seemed scorching in its intensity, the Coast Guard yesterday afternoon reported that a bevy of bathers, clad in sparkling new suits, appeared on the pier and took a dip. Burton G. Starke, St. Joseph insurance man, has the honor of inaugurating straw hat season for 1926. Mr. Starke appeared yesterday morning in a Ritz straw hat that fairly sparkled in the bright rays of the sun. "What's the big idea?" queried a fellow Rotarian of Mr. Starke. "It's summer and you don't know it," was the reply.

Benton Harbor Mayor Foelzter did not appoint the chief of the tire department last evening. He said that it would be unwise to do so until some action had been taken on the ordinance authorizing the establishment of a paid department with a chief and four paid firemen.

An important meeting will be held at Dr. John Bell's office this evening to make plans for securing the new normal school for Benton Harbor.

Dowagiac — Attorney C.E. Sweet has returned from Lansing where he looked into the matter of securing the new normal school for this city. He said the senators and representatives were a little inclined to give him the laugh when he mentioned the normal school and the fact that Dowagiac was after it. They said Dowagiac was altogether too early in the game as nothing would be done about the location for some time yet.

Cross Purposes Botch Production

see it only as a problem of enforcement, environmentalists who see it only as a problem of protecting the environment and businessmen who see many of the regulations only as something hampering production.

Those present were especially disturbed at what they saw as a growing reluctance of American businessmen to venture into new fields and advanced products at the pace necessary to keep our economic heads above the water. It's become more practical, they agreed, to meet rising costs by streamlining production methods.

The feeling was strong that our slowness in adopting new ideas would make it impossible to hold our own with foreign competition or to absorb millions of unemployed.

Then an academician spoke up. The problem is not that the regulators are wrong, or that businessmen are; the problem is that if you get regulators together, they look for perfection naturally — no pollution, no accidents, no industrial dangers, no faulty products, no possible slips.

If you get businessmen together, they, naturally, see what these regulations costs their businesses, how they cramp their ability to expand or to hold prices down. They note there has not been sufficient research to prove many of the dangers or that regulations would cure the problems — except at the cost of killing the patient.

There is no wrong or right involved here, he said. There are only different and valid objectives which conflict and call for the same sort of negotiations between labor unions and management.

But we insist on getting into little boxes, the regulators in one group with their attorneys, the businessmen in a group by themselves and the academic types in an upstairs room. We have medical committees who see pollution only as a medical problem, legal committees who

In the case at hand, most of those present at the meeting agreed that the first and crucial step was to get regulatory agencies to cease thinking of themselves primarily as enforcement agencies. The doors should be opened to give and take until a practical answer or compromise aimed at meeting the legitimate needs of all parties could be hammered out.

This would call, it was agreed, for a great deal of flexibility, both by bureaucrats and by businessmen, which, in the present atmosphere of suspicion and mistrust may be difficult to achieve.

Marianne Means

Million Dollar Anchor Woman

Edwin Newman, substituting for John Chancellor on the NBC Nightly News last week, noted that a survey by the U.S. Census Bureau found that in 1974 the median income for working women was only 57 per cent of that of working men, a gap that had increased by 2 per cent over the past two years. Then he added dourly: "The survey was apparently made before recent events in television news."

His remark was right to the point. Walters is not only a novelty because she is the first national network female co-anchor. She is a novelty because she is also going to be well paid for it. Women in television, as in most other industries, have traditionally been paid lower wages than men.

A salary in her fantasy range is mind-boggling. All things are relative. Harry Reasoner, with whom Walters will share the Evening News co-anchor spot, is "only" getting a $400,000 salary, but that ABC News show has been flopping, which is why the network snatched the lady away from NBS. If Walters brings in new viewers and millions in new revenue, she will be worth her million.

The squawks from television news officials that Walters will create a circus atmosphere and demean the seriousness of the news shows are spiteful and ridiculous. TV news has always had an element of show business. TV reporters tape back their ears, go through hair transplants, diet and take voice lessons. How they look on the air is as important as what they say.
